War! War! War! Give! Give! Give!

Any person wishing to contribute to Lennox and Addington Patriotic Fund if they will be good enough to hand same to any of local banks in the County, the contribution will be forwarded to Sec-Treas., without cost.

The Lennox and Addington Patriotic Fund Committee has undertaken its canvas of the County for contributions to the fund. They expect an enthusiastic response from every person and every organization within the county. They are justified in this because they feel certain that the citizens of Lennox and Addington are as interested and as anxious that the Boys of our County should be encouraged in their loyal support of the Empire as those of any other county in the Province or Dominion. Kingston carried on a whirlwind canvas last week and in one day raised $30,000, and in three days $53,000. Other places are doing it. Why not we?

At a meeting held in Ottawa to initiate a similar campaign, to raise $350,000, our leaders spoke very enthusiastically. The Governor General, His Royal Highness Duke of Connaught, said, "I hope that my attendance and also of the Duchess and my daughter will show you how thoroughly we are in sympathy with the objects you have brought together on this occasion." He believed that the efforts now being made throughout Canada to raise a Patriotic Fund would ensure that not a single one of the dependents of those who had gone to the front would suffer from want.

Sir Robert Borden said, "No one can foresee the duration of the tremendous struggle in which our Empire is now engaged, but it is certain that all the aid which the generosity and patriotism of the Canadians can supply, will in all probability be needed."

Sir Wilfred Laurier speaking at the same meeting said that he voiced his admiration of the splendid way in which Canada had come forward to support "as sacred a cause as ever men fought and died for."

Every Canadian feels that he must do something to show that he is fully in accord with the policy of the Empire in regard to war and also appreciates the devotion and sacrifice of those who will represent us in the battlefield.

"England expects every man this day to do his duty." So does Canada. It is a duty that none can shirk. At home or at the front every one must play the part of a soldier. In the mobilization of our Dollars in the Patriotic Fund we must not be less enthusiastic than in the mobilization of our contingent. It is not our privilege to be in the latter, it is our duty to be in the former. It is not a case of how much should I give, but how much can I give.

AN EXCELLENT PATRIOTIC ADDRESS

On Tuesday evening Napanee the County of Lennox and Addington had the rarest treat in the form of a lecture that has come to us for years. Sir Alan Aylsworth, a Lennox and Addington old boy gave a wise, brilliant and instructive address of the causes of the present.

Sir Alan feels this crisis so keenly that he again and again in the course of his address, referred to the of Canadian defence, because the Canada's war to protect home, spire freedom, and assist the Motherland in her more imminent danger. The Honorable gentleman impressed upon his audience that if by possibility Germany should be victorious the greatest prize she could demand while Britain would on her knees, would be Canada.

he warmly acclaimed that should many ever have Canada as a colony for one would never live in Canada. Few of us clearly realize such a contingency would mean Canada's freedom of speech and newspaper liberty and responsible government to the people would all in measure be lost if German authority should ever be exercised here.

Kaiser is lord of all, he surveys Germany, and what does not exist our Kingdom and Empire, cannot claim to "divine right" to rule, however, exist in the German Empire. This war is a war of horror. integrity of the Germans as a people to the agreement to the neutralization of Belgium has been shattered.

when that agreement was broken could Britain place any confidence any pledges Germany proposed make as to respecting the dominion of France. Could Britain accept suggestion preparatory to an agreement from Germany's Chancellor the Kaiser to the above purpose, maintain her faith in an established friendship with France. Nay, Britain could not stand by and see her friend be robbed of her possessions. Such an attempt on the part of many to acquire France's colonies yet leave France herself intact, would arouse any nation that has a modicum of high enough to prohibit high robbery. And Britain having a friendly arrangement with France could tolerate such abuse.

Sir Allan having clearly outlined the cause of the war, and having shown that this war was not one of England's choosing, went on to appeal to this U. E. Loyalist Country that she do her part in the war in men and money and maintain splendid traditions that bespeak loyalty and our willingness to charge our duty.

Calls on Teutonic Troops to "Walk Over" General French's "Little Army."

London, Oct. 1, 4.45 a.m.—The Times to-day says that it is able to give, from a thoroughly trustworthy source, the text of an order issued by Emperor William to his army on August 19. It follows:—

"It is my royal and imperial command that you concentrate your energies for the immediate present upon one single purpose, and that is, that you address all your skill and all the valor of my soldiers, to exterminate first the treacherous British, and walk over General French's contemptible little army."

The Germans main supply base Juniville, which is protected by masses of troops, as it is absolutely essential that this place shall be for the re-equipping of the German armies in northeastern France, appears to be placed in a somewhat precarious situation, with its line of railroad.

The front now presents some windings, looping inward and ward at various points in a way which everywhere is wonderfully adapted to defence.

ONTARIO'S PREMIER PASSED AWAY

Sir James P. Whitney, premier of Ontario, died at Toronto, at noon, on Friday last.

The first definite word of the illness which led eventually to Sir James' death, was received on January 4th, from Hon. Dr. Pyne, with whom Sir James had been spending some time in the southern states. Sir James was then moved to New York where he lay very seriously ill until January 19th, when he was taken to Toronto general hospital. He was reported several times close to death's door, but on March 9th he recovered sufficiently to walk home.

Then followed the strenuous days leading up to and through the provincial general election, when with Sir James at the leadership, the conservative party was again returned to power. Since that date Sir James has attended to his duties at the parliamentary buildings, more or less, but it was frequently hinted that he was far from well.

Something was said in Toronto papers last week about the premier being very ill again, but the announcement of his death came as a startling surprise to most people. Another severe hemorrhage Friday morning brought the end. The late premier was conscious to the last. At his bedside when death came were Lady Whitney, Miss Norah Whitney, his daughter, and Sir James' lifelong friend and fellow cabinet minister, Hon. D. Pyne.

LT.-COL. HON. SIR JAMES PLINY WHITNEY, K.T., K.C.M.G., L.L.D., D.C.L., K.C. (Dundas.)

Prime Minister and resident of the Council, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ont.

Born : Williamsburg, Ont., Oct. 2, 1843, son of Richard Leet and Clarissa J. (Fairman) Whitney.

Educated : Cornwall Grammar School; received degree of L.L.D. from Toronto University, June, 1902 ; D.C. L. from Trinity University, Toronto, 1902 ; and L.L.D. from Queen's University, Kingston, 1903.

Called to the Bar, 1876 ; appointed Q.C., 1890 ; on active service as N. C. O. in the active militia during the Fenian troubles ; is Lt.-Col. of the Militia Reserve. Unsuccessful candidate to Ontario Legislature for Dundas, Dec., 1886. The successful candidate having been unseated, Mr. Whitney was returned at bye-election, Jan., 1888 ; re-elected 1890, 1894, 1898, 1902, 1905., 1908 and 1911 ; chosen leader of the Opposition, April, 1896. At the general election, Jan. 1905, the Ross Government was defeated, and Mr. Whitney was called upon on Feb. 7, 1905, to form a new Government.

This he did on the following day, assuming the office of Attorney-General, in addition to that of Prime Minister ; re-elected by acclamation. In June, 1905, he relinquished the office of Attorney-General and assumed that of President of the Council. At the general election, June 8, 1908, his Government received an extraordinary proof of the confidence of the people, eighty-six out of the one hundred and six members elected being supporters of it. His Government was once more sustained by a large majority at the general election of 1911. The honor of knighthood was conferred upon him by H.R.H., the then Prince of Wales, July 23, 1908, at the Citadel, in the City of Quebec, on the occasion of the Tercentenary of the foundation of the City of Quebec and the nationalization of the battlefields. Received the honor of K.C.M.G., Jan. 1913. Has been delegate to General Synod of Church of England in Canada, and to the Ottawa Diocesan Synod.

The remains laid in state at the Parliament Buildings on Monday and on Tuesday morning service was held in St. James Cathedral, Toronto, after which the remains were taken by special train to Morrisburg.

With an absence of garish display that he reflected all through his life, the remains of Sir James Whitney were buried in the cemetery adjoining the Whitney Memorial Chapel, near his birthplace at Williamsburg, three miles east of Morrisburg, Tuesday afternoon. What was lacking in state trappings was more than compensated for in the genuine manifestations of respect that Morrisburg paid to her distinguished citizen.

RUSSIANS IN HUNGARY

Right Wing of the Austrians
Now in Flight.

Route of Austro-Hungarian Army Complete and All Artillery Has Been Taken—Russians and Germans Are in Death Grip Between Eydkuhnen and Lyck—Russian Reinforcements Coming Up.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—A despatch from Petrograd says:

"The right wing of the Austrians has been driven back beyond the Carpathians into Hungary, where they are being pursued by Russian

"The Austrian debacle is complete and they have lost all their artillery. The Austrian left wing has retreated to Cracow. The Russians have occupied another of the forts of Przemy which is now entirely invested.

"On a line of battle beginning Eydkuhnen in the north and extending through Goldapp to Lye just inside the borders of East Prussia, the Czar's forces and a great first line army of Germans are now in death grip. Sleet and rain are falling constantly, the roads are badly clogged, and what appears to be a rigorous winter is just beginning. The Germans are strongly entrenched, previously selected positions, while reinforcements for the Russians have been coming up from Warsaw for several days.

Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief, has made the following announcement:

"An engagement near Sopotski on the Niemen river in Russian Poland, and Drussniki, came to an end with the retreat of the Germans. The enemy has approached Ossowie from the north and has begun the bombardment of the fortress.

"In Galicia we have occupied Debica, on the railroad east of Cracow and between Rzeszow and Tarnow

"A numerous column of the enemy is retreating from Przemy in the direction of Sanok, 38 miles south-east of Jaroslau. In their flight the abandoned artillery and automobile transports.

"At Colouje we defeated a detachment of the enemy and captured his artillery and many prisoners. Continuing the pursuit we entered Hungary."

The Russian armies in Galicia, as said by the Petrograd War Office, have occupied six of the passes in the Carpathian Mountains. A movement south of Lemberg has been successful in cutting off Hungarian reinforcements.

At the nearest point of the Russian advance they are only 50 miles from Cracow, where the German authorities have taken control and are making feverish attempts to organize an effective resistance. Despite swollen rivers and continuous rains the Czar's armies forge ahead.

The huge extent of the Russian operations makes it difficult to comprehend the entire significance of even now transpiring. The fortress of Przemy, now well to the rear of the Russian advance, is sorely beleaguered. One of the main forts is in the hands of the besiegers.

The Austrian retreat through Galicia is described as one long tragedy with the Cossacks wreaking a terrible revenge for early Austrian atrocities. Guns, men and munitions fall in their hands every day. The number of prisoners and quantities of supplies is said to be beyond all estimate for the present. The Cossacks are sweeping the fugitives into Cracow in great droves, operating almost within sight of its towers.

The German steamer Prussia has arrived at Santos, Brazil, and landed the master and fifteen men of the British steamer Indian Prince, which was sunk by the German auxiliary cruiser Kron Prinz Wilhelm.

The contributions to the Canadian Patriotic Fund in Kingston stand the highest per capita of any city in Canada so far. The average there is $2.65 per head. In other cities the average has been from $1.50 to $2.50.

Emperor William is suffering from a severe cold, according to the Geneva correspondent of The London Chronicle. He caught it in the trenches before Verdun where he was drenched by the rain when recently viewing his soldiers.

Mrs. Charles Sargeant, mother of Private Sargeant, who was accidentally shot by a comrade while handling a revolver on guard duty on the Welland Canal three weeks ago, died yesterday. The tragedy hastened her end.

A decree forbidding the exportation of flour and wheat has been issued by the Roumanian Government. It is not believed that this is preliminary to a declaration of war, but that it is merely a precautionary move.

The steamer Samuel Marshall, which ran ashore at Sparrowhawk Point, near Kingston, was released yesterday with very little damage. The steamer Toller, which ran aground near Farran's Point, was also taken off.

ANXIETY IN BRUSSELS.

German Garrison Taking No Chances On a Surprise.

ANTWERP, Sept. 29.—A report brought from Brussels Sunday says: It is certain, at present, that the Germans are taking all precautions to defend the ground foot by foot, and to avert the risk either of surprise or of an enveloping movement by our troops seeking to surround their garrison in Brussels. The latter is in constant contact with the German army posted before Antwerp. Brussels constitutes for the Germans a sort of entrenched camp. Important works of defence have been completed all around the town. Numerous roads and bridges have been mined, and there are not a few clever traps. Thus, between Bercheste, Agathe, and Grand Bigard, after having excavated the highway to a great depth, the Germans have placed in the excavations over three hundred barrels without tops, which are covered with branches and earth. One can well conceive what would be the effect of a cavalry charge in this spot. Luckily the commanders of the Belgian army are quite well aware of these goings-on on the part of the Germans.

The people of Brussels are looking forward not without dismay to the approach of winter. The stoppage of commerce and industry is complete, and the working classes, whose little savings were exhausted long ago, owe their existence to the humanitarian work of the municipal councils and private philanthropists, the carrying out of which will perhaps avert revolts, popular risings and the pillage of shops.

NURSES MUTILATED.

Thirteen In London Have Had Hand Cut Off By Germans.

MONTREAL, Sept. 29.—Miss Hanson, daughter of Rev. Dr. Hanso pastor of Erskine Presbyterian Church here, who returned from England a few days ago, has brought back information which she learned from a matron of a London hospital that 13 English nurses serving at the front had their two hands cut off by German soldiers. The matron said that the nurses were being treated in the hospital with which she was connected.

Dr. Hanson gave currency to his daughter's information Sunday night from his pulpit, and said that he had not the slightest doubt as to its accuracy.

City Is Reported To Be On Fire, But Details Are Lacking.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Belgian city of Mons, where the British led the first important engagement of the war, is reported to be on fire. It is not known what part of the allied forces has succeeded in shelling the town.

Doesn't Hanker For Presidency.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Assurance from Gen. Villa that he will not be a candidate for President or vice president of Mexico were forwarded to the administration here yesterday. Gen. None of the others have appeared as candidates.

ANOTHER CATHEDRAL GONE.

St. Rombaut at Malines Ruined by German Shells.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 29. — A Central News special correspondent says: "I have just returned from the Belgian city of Malines, which has been bombarded by the Germans for the third time, although the town is open and is not making the least defence."

"Yesterday (Sunday) people were returning from church at 9.30 o'clock in the morning when a shell fell in the midst of a group, killing several. The remainder fled to a cafe. Soon afterward a shell exploded in the cafe, wounding several."

"The rain of shells continued, fifty an hour. The first fell in the railway station, and eight others fell in the Place de la Gare. The neighborhood affected by the firing included the station, the barracks, a cabinet maker's establishment, the Sisters of the Poor headquarters, and the national stamp factory. Many private houses and other buildings collapsed, blocking traffic."

"The forts of Waelhem and Wavre replied until evening."

"The Cathedral of St. Rombaut has been almost completely destroyed and its tower is badly injured."

"It is officially stated that on Saturday a German detachment, comprising a brigade of infantry, two regiments of cavalry and six batteries of artillery, including two heavy guns, was surprised during a march from Brussels to Termonde, near Alost. The Belgians attacked on both front and flank and the Germans fell back in disorder toward Asche, leaving many prisoners, wounded and several caissons."

RUSS MAY FIGHT TURK.

Czar's Government Believed To Be Ready To Declare War.

ROME, Sept. 29.—It is reported in diplomatic circles here that Russia is prepared to declare war on Turkey and that she will exact demobilization from the Ottoman Empire.

Meanwhile the closing of the Dardanelles is imminent. Russians now here and in Switzerland have been warned to return to Russia before Oct. 6, when the last Russian steamer will sail for Odessa from Genoa.

The cruiser Goeben, it is announced, has passed through the Bosphorus and will join the Turkish fleet in the Black Sea. There is no doubt now that Italy is prepared to strike at short notice. The first line army of 450,000 men has been quietly mobilized, and preparations made for the calling of one million reservists to the colors. The Italian fleet, too, is ready for service at any moment. All reports have agreed that Italian public opinion would welcome a declaration of war against Austria immediately. It is believed now that Italy is waiting for an excuse to enter the war. Almost any overt act would do, but Italy is said to feel that she cannot enter the war with the avowed intention of attacking Austria simply to regain her province.

Although the Official Bulletins Are Short, the Indications of Futile German Efforts to Break Allies' Centre at Any Cost Show That the Invaders Are Desperate — War Office at London Is Optimistic.

LONDON, Sept. 29. — The end of the battle of the Aisne, with complete success for the allies, is declared by military officials here to be in sight.

Speculation generally turns to new movements of troops. It is possible that the Indian troops (who came by way of the Suez Canal, and not across Canada) have entered the field of action. There are many significant reports that would bear out this, but the censorship prohibits their being sent out at the present time.

One thing is certain. The War office is more optimistic than at any time since the opening days of the battle of the Marne.

The English and French communications are exceedingly terse. That issued from Bordeaux says:

"There is nothing new in the general situation. All is relatively quiet along part of the front. Nevertheless, in certain places, especially be-

Alderson will get the appointment, although it has not yet been made officially.

Germans Admit Heavy Losses.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—(Via London)—A correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger in a despatch published here yesterday points out that a decisive turn in the battle which has been raging in the western theatre of the war need not be expected for some time. Subordinate actions of a decisive character are becoming more general, the correspondent declares, and the losses of the Germans have been extraordinarily heavy.

way of the Suez Canal, and not across Canada) have entered the field of action. There are many significant reports that would bear out this, but the censorship prohibits their being sent out at the present time.

One thing is certain. The War office is more optimistic than at any time since the opening days of the battle of the Marne.

The English and French communications are exceedingly terse. That issued from Bordeaux says:

"There is nothing new in the general situation. All is relatively quiet along part of the front. Nevertheless, in certain places, especially between the Aisne and the Argonne region, the enemy has again attempted violent attacks which have been repulsed."

The British statement says: "Last night the enemy attacked our lines with even more vigor than at any previous time. They, however, met with no more success than on previous occasions."

"There is no change in the general situation. The Germans have gained no ground. The French have advanced here and there."

The night communique from the French War Office was as follows:

"First—On our left wing the reports on the situation are favorable.

"Second—On the centre our troops have successfully withstood new and very violent attacks. We have made some slight progress on the heights of the Meuse. In the Woevre region a thick fog has caused a suspension of operations.

"Third—On our right wing (Lorraine and the Vosges), there has been no change in the situation."

With heavy reinforcements on the German right and the French left, the attempt to crumple up that wing of the Kaiser's forces is still in progress. Never before in the history of recent wars has there been such a determined and prolonged attack on a given point as that being made by the allies. Day after day they have pushed forward, literally by inches. Despite the juncture effected by Von Boehm, bringing fresh troops from Belgium, with the army of Von Kluck, the advance has continued to gain ground. The dearth of news is taken to mean that the battle is surely nearing its final stage. It is remembered that just before the crucial day of the Marne there was similar scarcity of information. No one would be surprised to suddenly hear that the Germans had begun to leave France, bag and baggage.

Indications of the tremendous efforts of the German soldiers are to be seen in the fact that the crack Prussian Guard has been almost cut to pieces. Companies having a normal strength of 250 men are reduced to 100 men, and practically all of the officers with which they went into action have been replaced by new arrivals, the others having been killed.

The opposing battle lines are said to be almost within view of each other at all points. The operations have not changed for days, so far as tactics are concerned, the allies constantly pressing the German right wing, and the Germans in turn hurling their best corps at the French centre to create a diversion.

The Central News yesterday received the following despatch from its Paris correspondent:

"Both the allies and the enemy, far from being exhausted after more than a fortnight of continuous fighting, appear to be throwing increasing vigor into their operations. Exceptionally fierce engagements are now being fought, particularly on the allies' left."

"It is impossible, owing to the rigorous press censorship, to divulge all the information whereon the opinions of your correspondent are based; nevertheless, one cannot help expressing the view that the Germans are fighting with the violence of desperation and the allies with the energy of those upon whose sight the dawn of success is beginning to break.

"The movement of the German troops on the left of the centre to support the menaced right wing reveals in itself the policy of desperation—an attempt to achieve victory at a staggering cost. This movement, however, appears to be completely failing.

"Our men, despite the enemy's reinforcements, are still gaining ground and if the essentials of good spirits and excellent organization count they will continue thus to gain."

Loss of Sleep.

Medical authorities state that it takes fifteen days for the average human body to recover fully from the loss of two consecutive nights' sleep.

Considering the shapes of shoes to which it is required to conform, the civilized human foot is not so disgraceful as it appears.

Dancing, according to a physical instructor, is the best of exercise. It may be so, but that is not the reason so many indulge in it.

SHEFFIELD RURAL SCHOOL FAIR

The first Children's Rural School Fair to be held in Sheffield Township was held at Tamworth, Friday, Sept. 25th. The attendance at the Fair was over 800 people. The quality of exhibits by the children was fine, and the large tent was filled to overflowing with grain, potatoes, roots, bread, cooking, sewing and collections of weeds, weed seeds, and insects.

Over 290 White Wyandotte chickens were on exhibit. The children hatched and reared these from eggs supplied by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

THE FEDERAL DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

The report of the Minister of Agriculture for the Dominion of Canada for the year ending March 31st, 1914, has been issued.

In the opening section, of which there are five in addition to nineteen appendices, references are made to the legislation affecting the Department passed during the year. The Agricultural Gazette, the general assembly of the International Agricultural Institute, the International Meteorological Commission and other matters of general interest. This is followed with brief reviews of the many services carried on in the separate branches, including dairy and cold storage, seed, live stock, experimental farms, health of animals, patents of invention, copyrights and public health.

This report, which is issued as seasonal paper No. 15, is a volume of 119 pages. Copies are available at the publications branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

INCREASING LIVE STOCK PRODUCTION.

The outbreak of war in Europe and the consequent demand which is naturally to be expected for increased exports of meats, finds Canada in a very much denuded condition as regards live stock.

As a result of the removal of the American tariff on cattle a heavy export trade developed to the south. In some districts in eastern Canada, nearly everything has been shipped out of the country, except dairy cows. This export trade, together with many farmers selling their calves for veal, can have but one result in Canada, viz: a greater scarcity of meat than at present exists, even in a normal market.

The meat industry in Canada should not be allowed to dwindle—rather, the production of hogs, sheep and cattle on Canadian farms should be greatly increased. To obtain this increase does not mean that farmers should devote their whole attention to live stock. The majority of farmers will admit that with very little extra effort and expense they could increase by several head the live stock on their farms without in any way interfering with their present system of farming.

From reports to the Commission of Conservation, present conditions indicate a world-wide scarcity in live stock with little likelihood of an over-

SPECIALS.

Given by Mr. G. A. Robinson, teacher of S. S. No. 2, Sheffield, for the meat industry in Canada should not be allowed to dwindle—rather, the production of hogs, sheep and cattle on Canadian farms should be greatly increased. To obtain this increase does not mean that farmers should devote their whole attention to live stock. The majority of farmers will admit that with very little extra effort and expense they could increase by several head the live stock on their farms without in any way interfering with their present system of farming.

From reports to the Commission of Conservation, present conditions indicate a world-wide scarcity in live stock, with little likelihood of an over-crowded market for many years to come. The opportunity for Canadian farmers is therefore apparent. To take advantage of this, farmers should save their heifer calves to produce more cattle, while the others may be turned off, not as veal but as beef.

Expert stockmen advise that there are good times ahead for those raising sheep. The high price of mutton and of wool and the comparative ease with which a flock of sheep may be sustained upon land which is otherwise unsuitable for agriculture, should suggest a great increase in the number of sheep raised by Canadian farmers.

Increased production in hogs can be brought about more quickly than in any other class of live stock, and consequently should receive immediate attention.

Animal production on the farm is desirable because it increases the fertility and crop-raising ability of the soil. Good prices are sure to be obtained for any surplus which farmers will have to sell on account of the inevitable shortage of supply resulting from war conditions in Europe. These two conditions should be an incentive to Canadian farmers to increase their live stock production. A little foresight now, with modern methods of feeding, will make increased production easily possible.

IRVING'S HEAD.

Why the Spot That Washington Touched Could Not Be Seen.

Among Dr. George Haven Putnam's early recollections was a meeting with Washington Irving. He tells of it in his "Memories of My Youth." The Irving home was near Yonkers and the Putnam family occasionally visited their neighbors. Dr. Putnam remembers one Sunday afternoon when his father was busy arranging some of Mr. Irving's papers and the old gentleman took pains to give him some word about his own childhood. "His mother told him some years later, when he was old enough to be interested in historical events and personages, that when he was a year old the nurse, taking him out in his baby carriage, saw at the corner of Broadway General Washington passing by on horseback. The nurse, holding up the little boy, called out to the general that here was a boy that had been named after him, and she hoped that the general would be willing to give the boy his blessing.

"Little Washingtons were not so plenty in 1784 as they became in later years, and the general was quite ready to delay his ride for the purpose of giving a greeting to his little namesake. He took the boy up on the saddle and, placing his hand upon the little one's head, gave him a formal blessing. I looked up with interest at the head that had been touched by Washington, and then found myself perplexed at Mr. Irving's word that I should not see the spot on which the general's hand had rested.

"I spoke to my father afterward about the incident, and he said, 'Why, you stupid, don't you know that Mr. Irving wears a wig?'" text to-day was, "Declare ye am the nations, and publish; set u standard; say, Babylon is taken, Jeremiah 50:2.

The discourse began with acknowledgment that the theme one difficult to handle without giving offence, without being misunderstood and that therefore the Pastor wished to express himself as kindly as knew how to do. He realized that his message was "meat in due season" for the Household of Faith, one most important to be understood. He reminded his hearers that his responsibility is to speak the Word of God, and that he must not shun to declare the whole counsel of God.

The Pastor explained that there was no Babylon in the days of Jesus and His Apostles. The expression in Revelation bearing upon My Babylon were prophetic of conditions which have since arisen in the Church. He traced the word Babylon back to the Tower of Babel, which, he declared, was a type of Papacy. It was a wonderful structure, but never accomplished the designs of its founders. The manifestation of God's Power amongst the workmen in founding their speech corresponded well with the Protestant Reformat movement and the various denominations into which Christendom has been divided.

It was then shown in detail that the literal city of Babylon was a prototype of Mystic Babylon, which pictured in Revelation as a spirit empire, including the great kingdoms of earth—Christendom. Another figure Mystic Babylon is presented by a woman and her daughters. Thus the various Protestant systems of Christendom depicted. Though long separated from the Mother Church of Rome these are still her daughters, partakers of her character, disposition and traits.

The Pastor reminded his audience that the language of Revelation figurative, and does not signify that either Mother Church or her daughters are immoral. The thought that the Church of Christ was primarily a virgin company, separated from the world—called to be joined with Christ in His Kingdom. To whatever extent systems are amongst Jesus' followers and became affiliated with the kingdoms of this world, to that extent, Scriptural figuratively, they committed harlotry; for they were espoused to Christ and were to wait for His second Coming, when they might become His Bride and Associate in His Messianic Kingdom.

It cannot be questioned that Papacy became affiliated with the Roman Empire and sat down on the Roman throne; nor that the Church of England, as one of her daughters became affiliated with the British Government and sits, representatively, in the House of Lords. It would not be questioned that the Greek Church experienced a similar betrayal and marriage to the Russian Government.

ASTOR RUSSELL

Sept. 6. — The Photo-Drama of Creation is still being wonderfully used of the Lord to interest the public in Bible study. Through this beautiful collection of masterpieces of art the Scriptures are being opened to the understanding of all classes everywhere.

Pastor Russell's xt to-day was, "Declare ye among nations, and publish; set up a ernment. It is in this sense that the Church of Rome and her daughters—Protestant organizations—are figuratively called by the family name of Babylon.

The Pastor then discussed the picture of Mystic Babylon given by the Revelator. The golden cup in the woman's hand represents the Bible, the Divine standard of authority. It was misused when the wine of false doctrine was put into it—when the Bible was claimed to be authority for various erroneous teachings of the Dark Ages. The intoxicating drink which made the nations drunk and led them to call themselves Christian is still offered to whoever will receive it. But the nations are sobering up, and are less and less inclined to take the mixture.

The Euphrates, flowing through literal Babylon, represented the peoples and nations supporting Mystic Babylon by contributions and offerings. (Revelation 17:15.) The drying up of the waters might represent a cessation of revenue. In full accord with this Divine prediction of what is yet to come, we hear a cry from all denominations that their revenues are being dried up — and this at the time of the world's greatest wealth.

When foretelling the disaster upon Babylon, the Prophet Jeremiah gave the message to Israel, "Flee out of Babylon; deliver every man his soul." The descriptions of that destruction

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 28.—Wheat opened easier on weaker Liverpool cables, but firmed up later on good buying by exporters and fair general demand for cash wheat. Oats held fairly steady.

While the cash demand is active, the amount of business transacted is light, the spreads being too wide, causing few offerings to be put on the market.

The weather over the prairie provinces is ideal for the movement of grain, and predictions are for a continuance. Inspections totaled 2405 for Saturday and Sunday, against 2372 last year, and in eight 1150 cars.

Cash: Wheat—No. 1 northern, \$1.08 $\frac{1}{2}$; No. 2 do., \$1.04 $\frac{1}{2}$; No. 3 do., 99 $\frac{1}{2}$; No. 4, 93c; No. 5, 87c; No. 6, 82c; feed, 78c.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—The situation in grain here today showed no improvement from last week. The enquiries received from abroad were few in number and lower in price. Much the same thing occurred in flour. The demand for cheese was also light and the receipts of butter, which were large, lowered prices for all grades.

Receipts of eggs continued small and prices firm. The only buying of hay that is going on appears to be for government account. Provisions were quiet.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

WOMAN IN TERRIBLE STATE

Finds Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cape Wolfe, Canada.—"Last March I was a complete wreck. I had given up all hope of getting better or living any length of time, as I was such a sufferer from female troubles. But I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am in good health and have a pair of twin boys two months old and growing finely. I surprised doctors and neighbors for they all know what a wreck I was.

"Now I am healthy, happy and hearty, and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies. You may publish this letter if you like. I think if more women used your remedies they would have better health."—Mrs. J. T. Cook, Lot No. 7, Cape Wolfe, P.E.I., Canada.

Because your case is a difficult one, and doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women — ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

Makes Films Cheap.

Kasimir do Proszynski, who has been called the "Polish Edison," gave the first demonstration of his new cinematograph camera at the June meeting of the Royal Photographic Society in London recently.

The films used are on a narrow strip, but are on a broad sheet, and the pictures are impressed upon it sixteen to a line, backward and forward, much as on a sheet of typewritten matter.

M. Proszynski said that about a foot of this film was equal to 100 feet of ordinary film, and that whereas the cost of 100 feet of ordinary film, lasting for little more than one minute on projection, might be about $55, the cost of a sheet of broad film bearing the same number of pictures would be only 16 cents.

Answered.

The professor of economic was discoursing eloquently on the need of leadership in all things, and from the greatness of the leader he plunged into a discussion of the essentials to leadership. "And what," he exclaimed, "is the great characteristic of all born leaders, the first great essential to successful leadership?" He paused that the question and its import might be fully appreciated. "What is it?" he asked again.

A small voice, coming from the rear of the room, answered cheerfully: "Ready ability to satisfactorily used of the Lord to interest the public in Bible study. Through this beautiful collection of masterpieces of art the Scriptures are being opened to the understanding of all classes everywhere.

Pastor Russell's xt to-day was, "Declare ye among the nations, and publish; set up a standard; say, Babylon is taken."—remiah 50:2.

The discourse began with an acknowledgment that the theme is difficult to handle without giving offence, without being misunderstood, and that therefore the Pastor wished to express himself as kindly as he knew how to do. He realized that his message was "meat in due season" for the Household of Faith—the most important to be understood. He reminded his hearers that his responsibility is to speak the Word of God, and that he must not shun to declare the whole counsel of God.

The Pastor explained that there is no Babylon in the days of Jesus and His Apostles. The expressions Revelation bearing upon Mystic Babylon were prophetic of conditions which have since risen in the Church. He traced the word Babylon back to the Tower of Babel, which, he declared, was a type of Papacy. It was a wonderful structure, but never accomplished the designs of its founder. The manifestation of God's power amongst the workmen in commanding their speech corresponds well with the Protestant Reformation and the various denominations into which Christendom has been divided.

It was then shown in detail that the literal city of Babylon was a prototype of Mystic Babylon, which is pictured in Revelation as a spiritual empire, including the great kingdoms of earth—Christendom. Under other figures Mystic Babylon is represented by a woman and her daughters. Thus the various Protestant systems of Christendom are depicted. Though long separated from the Mother Church of Rome, these are still her daughters, partakers of her character, disposition and its.

The Pastor reminded his audience that the language of Revelation is figurative, and does not signify that the Mother Church or her daughters are immoral. The thought is that the Church of Christ was primarily a virgin company, separated from the world—called to be joint-heirs with Christ in His Kingdom. Whatever extent systems arose amongst Jesus' followers and became identified with the kingdoms of this world, to that extent, Scripturally, figuratively, they committed harlotry, for they were espoused to our Lord and were to wait for His Second Coming, when they might become His Bride and Associate in His Kingdom.

It cannot be questioned that Papacy became affiliated with the Roman Empire and sat down on the man throne; nor that the Church of England, as one of her daughters, became affiliated with the British Government and sits, representative in the House of Lords. It would be questioned that the Greek Church experienced a similar betrothal and marriage to the Russian Gov-

Babylon by contributions and offerings. (Revelation 17:15.) The drying up of the waters might represent a cessation of revenue. In full accord with this Divine prediction of what is yet to come, we hear a cry from all denominations that their revenues are being dried up—and this at the time of the world's greatest wealth.

When foretelling the disaster upon Babylon, the Prophet Jeremiah gave the message to Israel, "Flee out of Babylon; deliver every man his soul." The descriptions of that destruction seem grossly exaggerated until we perceive that Babylon's overthrow prefigured the much more serious experience of Mystic Babylon. These tribulations will constitute a part in the great Time of Trouble with which this Gospel Age will terminate and the Messianic Age be ushered in. Let God's people awake to prompt action! Loyalty to the Master means much more than words; it will include faithfulness even unto death.

Why He Drowned.

Describing the stringent police regulations of Berlin, a citizen of that city by way of illustration told the following story:

"Schmidt and Krauss met one morning in the park.

"Have you heard," says Schmidt, 'the sad news about Muller?'

"No, says Krauss. 'What is it?'

"Well, poor Muller went boating on the river yesterday. The boat capsized, and he was drowned. The water was ten feet deep."

"But couldn't he swim?"

"Swim? Don't you know that all persons are strictly forbidden by the police to swim in the river?"

The Blue Sky.

The blue sky which reveals itself as the hemispherical vault of the firmament in the absence of clouds is the far depths of the air sending back to the observer some part of the solar illumination which they receive. The light thus returned to the eye is "blue" simply because the particles of the air are of such exceedingly diminutive size that they can effectively deal with only the smallest of the luminous vibrations. There are a few faint interminglings of the other colored rays in the blue of the sky, but they are in such trifling quantity that the blue swallows them up.

A Medal of Blood.

Garibaldi was once presented with a medal made of his own blood. The giver was Dr. Manini of Naples, who was well known as a petrifier and preserver of the human body. Dr. Manini in offering the gift to Garibaldi said that whenever the general looked at it it would brace him up for the last fight, and across the medal were engraved the words, "The Blood of Garibaldi Is Forever Red." The strange medal is preserved by the general's descendants.

Temperature of Soil.

Beyond a depth of three feet the temperature of the soil does not vary very much from day to day. At sixty feet it is impossible to measure any change due to changing seasons; at forty feet it is barely measurable. At twenty-five to thirty feet a change from season to season is quite perceptible, though the change takes over six months. At three feet the average annual means is 45 degrees F.; at twenty-five feet a degree more.

A Regiment of Giants.

Frederick the Great originated the Prussian guards. His ambition was to form a royal bodyguard of giants. Every country was ransacked by his agents to supply recruits, and no head that towered above the crowd, even in the bazaars of Aleppo or Cairo, could escape the clutches of the Prussian king. The most extravagant sums were offered to men of exceptional inches, and an Irishman more than seven feet high, who was picked up by the Prussian ambassador in London, received a bounty of $6,500.—London Mail.

Oil on Wood.

Nearly every one thinks that oil will make anything slippery and that it will decrease friction between any two sliding surfaces. This is not so, for oil poured on wood will actually increase friction, and it has been found generally that anything used as a lubricant that is absorbed by the thing lubricated will have the opposite effect from the desired one. Wood friction will be decreased by soap or graphite, because these are not absorbed by wood.

This Way To the Tyrant.

Johnny was beginning to read. He ran to his father with a story book in his hand.

"Daddy," he asked, not knowing of a recent connubial argument, "what is an 'unreasonable tyrant?'" "Boy," said his father severely, "you'll go to bed for the day if you say another word against your mother."

He Balked.

"Now that you have agreed to marry me, dearest, I presume I had better ask your father's consent."

"You may if you like, but it isn't at all necessary. I am in the habit of doing exactly as I please."

"Oh, in that case perhaps I'd better consult your father about the advisability of not marrying you then."

The Proper Order.

A successful man died not long ago. Somebody says his success was due to brains, a sense of humor and complete self confidence.

Fault has been found with the arrangement of this sequence.

The critic claims that self confidence should come first, with brains trailing. There are six ways of arranging the trio.

Trial by Jury.

The establishment of trial by jury dates back prior to the time of Alfred the Great. He is said to have organized juries of twelve men, as now in practice, but even earlier six Welsh and six Anglo-Saxon freemen acted as a jury when there was a dispute between Welsh and Saxons.—London Express.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chamber,

Sept. 28th, 1914.

Council met on Monday evening. Mayor Alexander in the chair.

Present—Reeve Denison and Councillors Wiseman, Waller, Carson and Dickinson.

The minutes of the last regular session were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from Porter & Carnew, Belleville, on behalf of John Jennings, whose child was recently drowned by falling into the cistern in the fire hall. A settlement of the claim was asked for but no amount was stated.

On motion of Coun. Waller and Reeve Denison the solicitor will be instructed to take the necessary steps to protect the town against any action taken in this matter.

The yeas and nays on the motion was as follows:

Yeas—Alexander, Carson, Denison, Dickinson, Wiseman, Waller—6.

Nays—0.

A communication was read from C. M. Warner, in reference to building a cement walk on the south side of Bridge street, between Centre and John streets. He was given to understand that the council had decided not to build said walk this season, but he hoped this would be reconsidered. At any rate he hoped the council would build a cement crossing in front of the blacksmith shop and repair the walk.

Laid on the table until later in the evening.

Coun. Waller informed the council that from information he had received he was of the opinion that the C.N.R. were now in a position to discuss matters pertaining to the new C.N.R. Station.

The clerk was instructed to write to the C.N.R. officials seeking information as to whether they intended building their new station this year, the council being of the opinion that information in this regard would help the town to arrange its own details in the matter.

On motion of Councillors Waller and Dickinson the Streets Committee were instructed to lay down cement walks on the south side of Bridge street between Centre and John streets, and on Thomas street from the property line of the County buildings east, passed the residence of J. L. Boyer.

Mr. Johnston, of Brockville, appeared at the Council Board in reference to the establishing of a creamery in Napanee. The building which he desired to purchase for his business was located at the foot of Robert street, and is generally known in town as the "Collier Evaporator property." The town has a claim against this property for back taxes, and the council was asked to remit the amount.

On motion of Councillors Waller and Wiseman a resolution was passed recommending to the Court of Revision that the amount of back taxes against the above named property be remitted, provided the sale of the property is made to Mr. Johnston for a sum not exceeding $1200.

A resolution was passed giving Hagerty & Son permission to place stone on the east side of Centre street, near the site of the drill hall, said material not to extend out into the road beyond a distance of twenty feet. Small houses will also be erected for the use of the stone-cutters. Hagerty & Son will assume all responsibility for any damage arising.

Mayor Alexander, Reeve Denison, and Councillor Waller were appointed a committee to ascertain the probable cost of laying a water-pipe to the property site of the Collier evaporation, and report at next meeting.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were ordered

SEEKING TO HAVE APPEAL MADE TO THE ELECTORATE

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—A determined fort is being made by a wing of the Borden Government to bring about general election at an early date. The idea seems to prevail in some quarters that it will be possible for the Dominion government to hold a short non-contentious session in parliament and then go to the country for its endorsement of the action of the government in connection with the war. The strongest pressure for an early appeal to the people, view of the fact of the political truth which has existed since the outbreak of the war, comes from Hon. Robt. Rogers, and his western followers. They realize that under normal conditions, with domestic issues to fore, the conservatives would have a mighty slim chance in the prairie provinces. It is common knowledge that if Mr. Rogers could have his way, the writs would be issued for an election practically at once; parliament would not meet again. This is not likely to occur, however, because Premier Borden, and the better element in the conservative party, realize that the people would not regard an election with favor. It would disturb existing conditions and interfere, seriously, with the efforts to aid the motherland and the suffering people of France and Belgium in this time of need.

Said Austria "You murderous Serb, You the peace of all Europe disturb, Get down on your knees and apologize please,
Or I'll kick you right off my front curb."

Said Serbia: "Don't venture too far Or I'll call my uncle, the Czar, He'll not see me licked, or insulted, or kicked,
So you had better leave things as they are."

Said the Kaiser, "Push in that Serb face,
It will teach him to stay in his place. If Russia says boo? I'm in the fight too,
And right quickly I'll settle the case."

The Czar says: "My uncle, the Kaiser Was always a good advertiser" He's determined to fight and he thinks he is right,
But soon he'll be older and wiser."

"For forty-four summers," said France,
I waited and watched for a chance, To wrest Alsace-Lorraine from the Germans again,
And now now is the time to advance."

Said Belgium: "When armies im-mense,
Pour over my boundary fence, I'll wake from my nap, and put up a scrap.
They'll remember a hundred years hence."

Said John Bull: "That ere Kaiser's a slob,
And he won't last much longer."

SECRET OF THE LOVE BIRD

It May Be Discovered in the Milk of Human Kindness.

Everything else dwindles into insignificance when the love bird appears. Affection, devotion, tenderness and love burst gladly forth at her magic touch. * * *

The road to happiness is attained through the generous distribution of the milk of human kindness.

Success, achievement, wealth, prominence, are only worth while when shared by your friends. No matter how large you can spell "success," it gives you little satisfaction if your accomplishment is not sincerely enjoyed by many. When surrounded by friend and loved ones, if you are fortunate in the acquisition of a generous disposition and charming personality, what joy it is to be able to give them cheer, comfort, pleasure and satisfaction!

Who does not feel better for the "God bless you" from an old lady to whom you have shown some trifling kindly attention? Who is not thrilled by the joyous barking of his dog upon returning home?

Fortunate are those who feel the arms of children around their necks, hear the baby's laugh and see the wonderful mites toddling toward them happy and unafraid.

All these joys sink into insignificance when the one and only one looks into your eyes, tender, true, steadfast. Words need not be spoken; nothing else matters. Then, and not until then will you know the excess of happiness, the full realization of love, and the time to unite yourself steadfastly to fidelity, magnanimous generosity and open heartedness to all.

SEEKING TO HAVE APPEAL MADE TO THE ELECTORATE

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—A determined effort is being made by a wing of the Liberal Government to bring about a general election at an early date. The idea seems to prevail in some quarters that it will be possible for the Dominion government to hold a short non-contentious session of Parliament and then go to the country for its endorsement of the action the government in connection with the war. The strongest pressure for an early appeal to the people, in view of the fact of the political truce which has existed since the outbreak of the war, comes from Hon. Robert Borden, and his western followers. They realize that under normal conditions, with domestic issues to the fore, the conservatives would have a pretty slim chance in the prairie provinces. It is common knowledge here, that if Mr. Rogers could have his way, the writs would be issued for an election practically at once and Parliament would not meet again. It is not likely to occur, however, says Premier Borden, and the other element in the conservative party, realize that the people would regard an election with favor. It would disturb existing conditions and interfere, seriously, with the efforts to aid the motherland and the suffering people of France and Belgium in this time of need.

TALE OF A TOWER

There It Stood, Yet It Had Never Been "Erected."

CLEVER EVASION OF THE LAW

The Curious Place Where John K. Graves Turned Out His Shot and Bullets and the Contract the Courts Declared Had Not Been Broken.

The late Senator Allison, whose home was at Dubuque, Ia., thoroughly enjoyed humor and a good story. One day when in a reminiscent mood Mr. Allison narrated the following story, based upon facts, which is worth a place among tales extraordinary:

"Along about 1890, when the west was yet quite new, a number of business men in Dubuque conceived the idea of establishing a plant for the manufacture of shot and bullets. At the time there was no factory of that sort nearer than St. Louis, and, with a lively demand for ammunition, it was figured that a shot tower would pay like a California gold mine. The tower was built, the necessary machinery was put in at large expense and production began.

"For a time business was quite satisfactory; then demand slackened, and it soon became apparent that the enterprise would never develop any Standard Oil dividends. After a time some of the stockholders became disgusted with the whole business and practically offered to give away their holdings.

"Among them was John K. Graves, who afterward became a power in eastern Iowa politics. Graves quietly bought up the stock as it was offered, getting practically all of it eventually on the basis of 5 or 10 cents on the dollar. Just what Graves wanted this stock for his associates in the venture could not figure out, but they did not lose any sleep over that. They were tickled to death to get anything out of the dead enterprise. It had been losing money for some time.

"Soon after this the war broke out. Graves instantly saw his opportunity. War makes great quantities of bullets necessary, and he made preparations to supply them. He indulged in certain statements concerning his plans and purposes in the presence of persons he knew would flash the information to a St. Louis concern, and his scheme worked admirably. Inside of two weeks a man whom Graves knew to be a representative of the St. Louis shot tower company called upon him and in the course of the conversation brought up the subject of stock in the Dubuque company. After several days of dickering and bantering Graves unloaded his entire holdings of stock at over fifty cents on the dollar, realizing a small fortune.

"By the terms of the agreement, however, Graves legally bound himself not to erect a shot tower within a hundred miles of Dubuque within ten years. The representative of the St. Louis concern had scarcely got beyond sight of Dubuque, down the river, until Graves sent in an order for a complete equipment of machinery for a new shot making plant. While awaiting its arrival he indulged in a little surveying.

When the sea grows gray and silent, and the moon sinks out of sight, And the stars turn sick an' tremble after seven hours of fight, God keep us dirty sailor men, from the Pole Star to the Cross, For we need Almighty keepin', an' some high, Almighty Boss.

For when the whole deck's throbbin' There ain't no time for prayer; But it's "Point your Long Tom dainty Over twenty miles of air!"

When them wounded German fellows came a-shakin' up outside I was funny round my stomach, and my bloomin' British pride Trembled like a silly pennant, they were all so human like; They had eyes an' hands an' faces just like any other tike.

But when the horizon's spittin' And we're coughin' back at it, Say! it's "Sweep the sea o' Germans!" An' "I guess—that—hit!"

I was walkin' past a cabin where we kept our prisoners tight, The sentry-go says, "Look here," an' I see a funny sight; There was two of them a-lookin' at a picture in their hand, Just as if there's German mothers in the German Fatherland.

But when we're in the fight line, It's "Forget your thoughts and fire!" While the look-out says beside you, "Steady! Nose her up a little higher!"

When I stopped an' looked to seaward in a tiny breathin' spell I see a Dreadnought stagger with her nose deep in the swell; She was struck below the belly, an' she-sunk an' gurgled down Very casual like, an' careless; made me sweat to see her drown.

But when we're stripped for action, Say, it's "Glory! glory!" then, An' it's "Sweep the sea o' Germans!" As we pick the range again.

We were lying close in harbor, coalin' up at Halifax, I was messin' with the range guns, streakin' polish down their backs. There was somethin' in the air—fell like a happy English rain; An' my mate, "Your bawlin'" an' I says, "I guess—that plain!"

But when we're sweatin' dirty, An' the sea's unholy red, Say, it's, "Mates, we'll fight for England Till the sun hisself is dead!"

ARTHUR L. PHELPS.

Sept. 15th.

The above poem, written for the Montreal "Weekly Witness," is one of the many strong things appearing in that splendid journal, and coming so close upon the wrecks of our own ships grips us hard. The editorials of the "Witness" on the war situation have the right ring to them, and are the product of a mind more than usually well informed, and foresighted. Those not now getting the "Witness" may have it on trial to the end of the year by sending fifteen cents in stamps to its old time publishers, John Dougall & Son, "Witness" Block, Montreal. It costs little to try it, and people who are not getting the "Witness" do not realize what they are missing. Some do not agree with it in everything. Neither do we. But it is one of the few great worthwhile papers all the same—and fifteen cents gets it to the end of the year.

The gathering of the world before the Throne will be the result of knowledge. The Time of Trouble will lead to great enlightenment, and the knowledge of God's glory will cover the earth ocean deep. Some will refuse to accept Christ as their Mediator, and will not enter into this judgment. After one hundred years of resistance, these will be cut off in the Second Death.

Since God is no respecter of persons, He will forgive the world when they turn from sin and accept Christ as their Redeemer. This does not mean that justice will be ignored, however. As in the Church the sins of youth often leave their sting to the end of life, so we may reasonably expect that stripes, punishments, will follow the world. From these weaknesses and frailties humanity will gradually be raised up during Christ's Millennial Reign. Two classes will be developed; one will come heartily into accord with the Divine will, but the other will merely assume an outward appearance of harmony in order to secure the desired blessing.

however, Graves legally bound himself not to erect a shot tower within a hundred miles of Dubuque within ten years. The representative of the St. Louis concern had scarcely got beyond sight of Dubuque, down the river, until Graves sent in an order for a complete equipment of machinery for a new shot making plant. While awaiting its arrival he indulged in a little surveying.

"Dubuque is situated partly upon a lofty hill or series of hills, and the inland country is extremely rough. When wandering among the bluffs Graves came upon the excavation of a deep well. Shortly afterward there was considerable activity in that vicinity. A force of men was employed to remove the debris, and the hole was enlarged and bricked up. A lateral incision was made into the side of the bluff, striking the main vertical shaft a hundred feet from the surface opening. Here a room was dug out and bricked up and prepared for the reception of machinery. By the time this work had been completed the outfit arrived and was quickly installed. Within two or three months of the time of disposing of the stock of the Dubuque concern Graves had the new suburban underground establishment in full blast, producing bullets and shot.

"Of course news of the new factory speedily reached the St. Louis concern, and they sent an attorney to Dubuque loaded with contracts and receipts and paraphernalia for making trouble. The lawyer called on Graves and plainly told him that if he did not shut up shop he would get the law on him quick. Graves replied that he did not understand he had violated any law or any pledge and that he would go right along making bullets, suggesting to the attorney that he start proceedings. The attorney invited Graves' attention to the bond given by the latter that he would not engage in the manufacture of shot or bullets within 100 miles of Dubuque for ten years. Graves contended that he had entered into no such covenant; he had pledged himself not to 'erect a shot tower,' and asked the attorney if he had erected a shot tower. The attorney said that was boy's talk; that such play would not go in a court of justice.

"The case was tried, and notwithstanding that every inch of ground was contested by the St. Louis concern, which had able counsel, Graves won. The St. Louis lawyers could not make the jury believe that Graves had 'erected' a shot tower. And so he went right on pouring melted lead into the hole in the top of the hill and gathering up shot and bullets in his brick room 100 feet below and became a wealthy man."—Frank I. Stillman in St. Louis Republic.

Each season ends with a finishing up of the work and a clearing away of rubbish, preparatory to the work of the incoming Age. The Jewish Age ended with a Harvest—a separation of "wheat" from "chaff," and a complete rejection of the chaff-class from Divine favor. With the few judged worthy a new arrangement began—the Gospel Age; and now we find ourselves in its closing scenes—the Harvest, during which "wheat" is being separated from "tares." With the wheat-class, with our Lord as Head, a new Age—the Millennium—is about to begin. At its close will also be a Harvest, in which sheep and goats will be separated, the sheep-class ushered into endless ages of glory, and the goats destroyed in the Second Death.

At one time the Parable of the Sheep and the Goats was applied to the Church. We read our Bibles so carelessly as not to notice that nothing whatever is said in the parable respecting the Church, but that it is applied to the world, the nations, the heathen. The Jews were accustomed to think of themselves as God's people and to style all others heathen, Gentiles, the nations, the people; and in the prophecies God treated the subject from this standpoint. In line with this thought our Lord in this parable tells what will befall the nations after the selection of the Church to be the Bride, the Lamb's Wife.

The Pastor then pointed out from the first verse of the parable what many fail to notice—that the scene is laid after the Time of Trouble, when Satan shall have been bound, Christ's Kingdom established, and the overcoming Church seated in the Throne with her Lord. The following verses describe the work of the Millennial Age, when all mankind will be gathered before the great white Throne of Divine Justice, Mercy and Love. First the living nations, and then the dead of every nation, will appear before Christ's Judgment Seat, there to receive a fair trial as individuals under the most favorable conditions. The outcome of this trial will be a final sentence of worthiness or unworthiness of life everlasting.

Meantime each individual will be making character. Ultimately the Great Judge, who will read the heart, will manifest to all the real heart difference between the two classes, all of whom will have been on trial for a thousand years. Then the sheep-class will receive the earthly dominion forfeited by Adam; but the "goats" will be cut off from life.

The kingdom prepared for the "sheep" is not the Messianic Kingdom, but that which God gave Adam, and which he lost through disobedience. This was redeemed by Christ, and He will give it to those who develop Godlike character. The everlasting punishment to which the "goats" are sentenced is the Second Death—"everlasting destruction"—from which there will be no redemption and no resurrection.

Fear Is Useless.

Phobism is an addition to fear (another name for worry). If smugness be unlovely from a social point of view phobism is fatal to its victim. Did it ever occur to you that fear can become a habit and a luxury, just as smoking is? But phobism is the more hazardous. We fear poverty, we fear disease, we fear death, we fear that we shall be snubbed socially. And each separate fear impairs our capacity for work in a definite, measurable way. I know many people addicted to the use of fear. Some of them use it to excess. To the psychologist fear is the most expensive of all habits that people indulge. Ninety-nine and forty-four one-hundredths per cent of fear is as useless as a deckband on a submarine.—Elliott Park Frost in Atlantic.

How to Win an Author.

"There's no greater fallacy," said an author at the Authors' club, "than the popular one to the effect that writers don't like you to talk to them about their work."

"Mark Twain exploded this fallacy well when he said that there were three ways of pleasing an author—first, to tell him that you have read one of his books; second, to tell him you have read all his books, and, third, to ask him to let you read the manuscript of his forthcoming book. The first way wins his respect, the second wins his friendship and the third wins his love."—New York Tribune.

"And it didn't have the desired effect?"

"No; it made him furiously angry."

N. FREDERICKSBURGH SCHOOL FAIR

A large and successful Children's Rural School Fair was held at Anderson's Church on Monday, Sept. 28th. The attendance was upwards of one thousand people, who enjoyed the day thoroughly. Many were heard to better than the regular Fall Fairs. The display inside the tent was simply grand. The Mangels, Flint Corn and apples, were the finest yet exhibited this year. The poultry display was extra large, over 300 White Wyandotte Chickens being shown. The entry of colts and calves was large. The ladies of Anderson's Church supplied the lunch.

LIGHTNING RODS.

Dear Sir:—

I wish to warn the farmers of Ontario against inferior lightning rods. In our investigations we have found that an iron-centred rod, that is, one composed of a strip of copper twisted around an iron or steel centre, whether the centre is a strip or wires or both, is a very short-lived rod. In many cases the iron is nearly all rusted away in from five to ten years, leaving only the copper, which is too light either to wear well, or to carry off a flash of lightning without melting. The copper sheath of these rods weigh less than half what the standard copper rods weigh. Any farmer who puts these iron-centred rods on his buildings is actually getting less present value for his money than if using an all-copper rod, to say nothing of the durability. A plain galvanized iron cable is more durable than the iron-centred rod.

In bulletin 220 on Lightning Rods, page 28, appears a photograph of a piece of iron-centred rod taken from the peaks of a building after eight years of use. The iron strip and wires were in several pieces, and more than than half rusted away.

It is to the credit of all lightning rod companies in Ontario, except two, that they are following the teaching of Bulletin 220, and do not supply iron-centred rods. Several months ago I personally informed one of the two companies that its iron-centred rod was not fit to put on a building, and the other even before bulletin 220 was published, was notified what its teachings would be regarding the iron-centred rod, and they were advised not to stock up with that kind of rod. Yet these companies are using other portions of the bulletin to induce farmers to buy these inferior rods which it condemns.

Under these circumstances I think it only fair to the farmers of the province to put them in possession of the facts. And it is not unfair to the companies for they were notified publicly through the bulletin and privately by letter, thus giving them ample time to provide a good rod. Indeed it has been a matter of surprise to me to learn through recent correspondence and personal reports that these rods were still being sold.

These companies can just as well supply good rods, as specified and described in the bulletin.

Perhaps it may not be amiss before concluding to say that our investigations have shown that properly installed rods will prevent $900 of loss out of every $1000 that would occur if the same buildings were not rodged.

Yours,

WM. H. DAY,

Professor of Physics,

Guelph.

Art and Children.

"What has art done for children?" This question was recently put to Walter Crane, the English illustra-tor, who has done so much to edu-cate the childish eye for the beauti-ful.

"When we began to work and in-augurated the change from the dry little wood cuts and too often crude and vulgar illustrations and made as beautiful picture books as we could for children," said Mr. Crane, "we simply followed our personal tastes and delights, working as ar-tists, and we thought chiefly of giv-ing pleasure to ourselves and the children and not of any theoretic good that might accrue to them in after years as a result of what we did.

"Picture books are a necessity, especially to children. They think in pictures instead of in words and learn from them too. Drawing to a child is a language. Every teacher should be able to draw so that he can illustrate his meaning to his young pupils in the way they under-stand best. And children should be encouraged and taught to draw be-fore they are taught to read."

Overzealous.

If you have ever been annoyed by a too enterprising barber you will appreciate the little incident that left one of them rueful and crestfallen the other day.

Having shaved the customer, he ran his hand over the man's head and said insinuatingly:

"Have a hair trim to-day, sir?"
"Do you think I need it?"
"Yes; it looks pretty long."
"Well, how is the boss barber on hair trimming? Is he pretty good?"
"Yes; he's pretty good, all right. But why?"

"Well, he trimmed my hair yes-terday."

Our Insignificant Earth.

If the earth should be annihilated the planets Venus and Mercury would fall a little nearer the sun and move around it a trifle faster, while all of the outside planets, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, would move away from the sun slightly and traverse larger orbits, moving a little slower thereon. The earth is so small, however, that only profession-al astronomers, armed with very ac-curate clocks and telemicroimeters, could hope to measure the minute disturbances.

His Usual Way.

The new waitress sidled up to a dapper young man at the breakfast table, who, after glancing at the bill, opened his mouth, and a noise issued forth that sounded like the ripping off of all the cogs on one of the wheels in the power house. The new waitress made her escape to the kitchen. "Fellow out there insulted me," she said. The head waiter looked at him. "I'll get it," he said. "That's just the train caller, and he is ordering his breakfast."

The Story of Waitstill Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN

Copyright, 1913, by Kate Douglas Wiggin

"Don't play tricks on me, Patty, and keep shovin' me off so an' givin' wrong reasons," pleaded Cephas. "What's the trouble with me? I know mother's temper's onusart, but we never need go into the main house daytimes, and father'd allers stand up ag'in her if she didn't treat you right. I've got a good trade, and father has $100 o' my savin's that I can draw out tomorrer if you'll have me."

"I can't, Cephas. Don't move—stay where you are. No, don't come any nearer. I'm not fond of you that way, and, besides—and, besides—"

Her blush and her evident embarrassment gave Cephas a new fear.

"You ain't promised a'eady, be you," he asked anxiously, "when there ain't a feller anywheres around that's ever stepped foot over your father's doorsill but jest me?"

"I haven't promised anything or anybody," Patty answered sedately, gaining her self control by degrees, "but I won't deny that I'm considering—that's true!"

"Considerin' who?" asked Cephas, turning pale.

"Oh—several, if you must know the truth," and Patty's tone was cruel in its jauntiness.

"Several!" The word did not sound like ordinary work-a-day Riverboro English in Cephas' ears. He knew that "several" meant more than one, but he was too stunned to define the term properly in its present strange connection.

"Whoever 'tis wouldn't do any better by you'n I would. I'd take a lick-in' for you any day," Cephas exclaimed abjectly, after a long pause.

"That wouldn't make any difference, Cephas," said Patty firmly, moving toward the front door as if to end the interview. "If I don't love you unlicked I couldn't love you any better licked, now, could I? Goodness gracious, what am I stepping in? Cephas, quick! Something has been running all over the floor. My feet are sticking to it."

"Good gosh! It's Mis' Morrill's molasses!" cried Cephas, brought to his senses suddenly.

It was too true! The gallon measure, forgotten by Cephas, had been filled to the brim ten minutes before, and ever since the treacly liquid had been overflowing the top and spreading in a brown flood, unnoticed, over the floor. Patty's feet were glued to it, her buff calico skirts lifted high to escape harm.

"I can't move," she cried. "Oh, you stupid, stupid Cephas! How could you leave the molasses spigot turned on? See what you've done! You've wasted quarts and quarts! What will father say and how will you ever clean up such a mess? You never can get the ther comes home. I'll sit on the flour barrel a little while and advise, but I can't stay long because I'm going to a picnic. Hurry up and don't look as if you were going to die any minute! It's no use crying over spilt molasses. You don't suppose I'm going to tell any tales after you've made me an offer of marriage, do you? I'm not so mean as all that, though I may have my faults."

It was nearly 2 o'clock before the card announcing Deacon Baxter's absence at dinner was removed from the front doorknob, and when the store was finally reopened for business it was a most dejected clerk who dealt out groceries to the public. The worst feature of the affair was that every one in the two villages suddenly and contemporaneously wanted molasses, so that Cephas spent the afternoon reviewing his misery by continually turning the tap and drawing off the fatal liquid. Then, too, every inquisitive boy in the neighborhood came to the back of the store to view the operation, exclaiming: "What makes the floor so wet? Hain't been spillin' molasses, have yer? Bet yer have! Good joke on Old Foxy!"

CHAPTER VIII.

On Tory Hill.

IT had been a heavenly picnic, the little trio all agreed as to that, and when Ivory saw the Baxter girls coming up the shady path that led along the river from the Indian cellar to the bridge it was a merry group and a transfigured Rodman that caught his eye. The boy, trailing on behind with the baskets and laden with tin dippers and wild flowers, seemed another creature from the big eyed, quiet little lad he saw every day. He had chattered like a magpie, eaten like a bear, torn his jacket getting wild columbines for Patty, been nicely darned by Waitstill and was in a state of hilarity that rendered him quite unrecognizable.

"We've had a lovely picnic!" called Patty; "I wish you had been with us!"

"You didn't ask me," smiled Ivory, picking up Waitstill's mending basket from the nook in the trees where she had hidden it for safe keeping.

"We've played games, Ivory," cried the boy. "Patty made them up herself. First we had the 'Landing of the Pilgrims' and Waitstill made believe she was the figurehead of the Mayflower. She stood on a great boulder and sang:

"The breaking waves dashed high
On a stern and rockbound coast and, oh, she was splendid! Then Patty was Pocahontas, and I was Cap'n John Smith, and look, we are all dressed up for the Indian wedding!"

"I shall have to run into father's store to put myself tidy," Waitstill said, "so goodby, Rodman, we'll have another picnic some day. Patty, you must do the chores this afternoon, you know, so that I can go to choir rehearsal."

Rodman and Patty started up the hill gayly with their burdens, and Ivory walked by Waitstill's side as she pulled off her birch bark crown and twisted her braid around her head with a heightened color at being watched.

"I'll say goodby now, Ivory, but I'll see you at the meeting house," she said as she neared the store. "I'll go in here and brush the pine needles off, wash my hands and rest a little before rehearsal. That's a puzzling anthem we have for tomorrow."

"I have my horse here. Let me drive you up to the church."

creature, who ought to be felling trees, plowing, sowing, reaping or at least studying law, making his own fortune and that of some future wife. Old Mrs. Mason, a garrulous, good hearted grandame, was their only near neighbor, and her visits always left his mother worse rather than better. How such a girl as Waitstill would pour comfort and beauty and joy into a lonely house like his if only he were weak enough to call upon her strength and put it to so cruel a test! God help him! He would never do that, especially as he could not earn enough to keep a large family, bound down as he was by inexorable responsibilities. Waitstill thus far in life had suffered many sorrows and enjoyed few pleasures. Marriage ought to bring her freedom and plenty, not carking care and poverty. He stole long looks at the girl across the separating space that was so helpless to separate, feeding his starved heart upon her womanly graces. Her quick, springing step was in harmony with the fire and courage of her mien. There was a line or two in her face—small wonder. But an "unconquerable soul" shone in her eyes, shone, too, in no uncertain way, but brightly and steadily, expressing an unshaken joy in living. Valiant, splendid, indomitable Waitstill! He could never tell her, alas! But how he gloried in her!

It is needless to say that no woman could be the possessor of such a love as Ivory Boynton's and not know of its existence. Waitstill never heard a breath of it from Ivory's lips; even his eyes were under control and confessed nothing, nor did his hand ever clasp hers to show by a telltale touch the truth he dared not utter; nevertheless she felt that she was beloved. She hid the knowledge deep in her heart and covered it softly from every eye but her own, taking it out in the safe darkness sometimes to wonder over and adore in secret. Did her love for Ivory rest partly on a sense of vocation—a profound, inarticulate divining of his vast need of her? He was so strong, yet so weak because of the yoke he bore, so bitterly alone in his desperate struggle with life, that her

"Yes, and it was that, in my mind that led him astray. I fear that spirit of God was never so strong as father as the desire to influence people by his oratory. That was what drew him to preaching in the place, and when he found in Jac Cochrane a man who could move an audience to frenzy, lift them out the body and do with their spirits he would he acknowledged him master. Whether his gospel was pure and undefiled religion I doubt but he certainly was a master of mantic control. My mother was guiled, entranced, even bewitched first, I doubt not, for she translated all that Cochrane said into her own speech and regarded him as the prophet of a new era. But Cochrane's 'revelations' differed from the first as were of the earth, earthly. My mother's pure soul must have revolted, but she was not strong enough to drag it ther from his allegiance. Mother was of better family than father, but they were both well educated and had the best schooling to be had in their day. So far as I can judge, mother always had more 'balance' than father as much better judgment—yet look at her now!"

"Then you think it was your father's disappearance that really caused his mind to waver?" asked Waitstill.

"I do, indeed. I don't know what happened between them in the way religious differences nor how much unhappiness these may have caused. I remember she had an illness when I first came here to live and I was little chap of three or four, but that was caused by the loss of a child, girl, who lived only a few weeks. She recovered perfectly, and her head was as clear as mine for a year or two after father went away. As his letter grew less frequent, as news of him gradually ceased to come, she became more and more silent and retired more completely into herself. She never went anywhere nor entertained visitors because she did not wish to hear the gossip and speculation that was going on in the village. Some of it was very hard for a wife to bear, as she resented it indignantly, yet never received a word from father which to refute it. At this time, nearly as I can judge, she was reclusive and subject to periods of profound melancholy, but nothing worse. Then she took that winter journey, her sister's deathbed, brought home the boy, and, hastened by exposure and chill and grief, I suppose, her mind gave way—that's all." And Ivory sighed drearily as he stretched himself on the greensward and looked toward the snowclad New Hampshire hills. "I've meant to write the story of the 'Cochrane craze' some time (such part of it as has to do with my family history, and you shall read it you like."

"I should like very much to read your account. Aunt Abby's version, for instance, is so different from Uncle Bart's that one can scarcely find the truth between the two, and father bears no relation to that of any of the others."

"Some of us see facts and others see visions," replied Ivory, "and these differences of opinion crop up in the village every day when anything not worthy is discussed. I came upon quotation in my reading last evening that described it, 'One said it thundered; another that an angel spoke.'"

"Do you feel as if your father were dead, Ivory?"

"I can only hope so. That thought

"It was too true! The gallon measure, forgotten by Cephas, had been filled to the brim ten minutes before, and ever since the treacly liquid had been overflowing the top and spreading in a brown flood, unnoticed, over the floor. Patty's feet were glued to it, her buff calico skirts lifted high to escape harm."

"I can't move," she cried. "Oh, you stupid, stupid Cephas! How could you leave the molasses spigot turned on? See what you've done! You've wasted quarts and quarts! What will father say and how will you ever clean up such a mess? You never can get the floor to look so that he won't notice it, and he is sure to miss the molasses. You've ruined my shoes, and I simply can't bear the sight of you!"

At this Cephas all but blubbered in the agony of his soul. It was bad enough to be told by Patty that she bearsal.

Rodman and Patty started up the hill gayly with their burdens, and Ivory walked by Waitstill's side as she pulled off her birch bark crown and twisted her braid around her head with a heightened color at being watched.

"I'll say goodbye now, Ivory, but I'll see you at the meeting house," she said as she neared the store. "I'll go in here and brush the pine needles off, wash my hands and rest a little before rehearsal. That's a puzzling anthem we have for tomorrow."

"I have my horse here. Let me drive you up to the church."

"I can't, Ivory; thank you. Father's orders are against my driving out with any one, you know."

"Very well. The road is free, at any rate. I'll hitch my horse down here in the woods somewhere, and when you start to walk I shall follow and catch up with you. There's luckily only one way to reach the church from here, and your father can't blame us if we both take it."

And so it fell out that Ivory and Waitstill walked together in the cool of the afternoon to the meeting house on Tory hill. Waitstill kept the beaten path on one side and Ivory that on the other, so that the width of the country road, deep in dust, was between them, yet their nearness seemed so tangible a thing that each could feel the heart beating in the other's side.

Their talk was only that of tried friends, a talk interrupted by long, beautiful silences—silences that come only to a man and woman whose understanding of each other is beyond question and answer. Not a sound broke the stillness, yet the very air, it seemed to them, was shedding meanings, the flowers were exhaling a love secret with their fragrances, the birds were singing it boldly from the treetops, yet no word passed the man's lips or the girl's. Patty would have hung out all sorts of signals and lures to draw the truth from Ivory and break through the walls of his self control, but Waitstill, never, and Ivory Boynton was made of stuff so strong that he would not speak a syllable of love to a woman unless he could say all. He was only five and twenty, but he had been reared in a rigorous school and had learned in its poverty, loneliness and anxiety lessons of self denial and self control that bore daily fruit now. He knew that Deacon Baxter would never allow any engagement to exist between Waitstill and himself. He also knew that Waitstill would never defy and disobey her father if it meant leaving her younger sister to fight alone a dreary battle for which she was not fitted. If there was little hope on her side there seemed even less on his.

His mother's mental illness made her peculiarly dependent upon him and at the same time held him in such strict bondage that it was almost impossible for him to get on in the world or even to give her the comforts she needed. In villages like Riverboro in those early days there was no putting away even of men or women so demented as to be something of a menace to the peace of the household. But Lois Boynton was so gentle, so fragile, so exquisite a spirit, that she seemed in her sad aloofness simply a thing to be sheltered and shielded somehow in her difficult life journey. Ivory often thought how sorely she needed a daughter in her affliction. If the baby sister had only lived the home might have been different; but, alas, there was only a son—a son who tried to be tender and sympathetic, but after all was nothing but a big, clumsy, uncomprehending man nothing, nor did his hand ever clasp hers to show by a telltale touch the truth he dared not utter; nevertheless she felt that she was beloved. She hid the knowledge deep in her heart and covered it softly from every eye but her own, taking it out in the safe darkness sometimes to wonder over and adore in secret. Did her love for Ivory rest partly on a sense of vocation—a profound, inarticulate divining of his vast need of her? He was so strong, yet so weak because of the yoke he bore, so bitterly alone in his desperate struggle with life, that her heart melted like wax whenever she thought of him. When she contemplated the hidden mutiny in her own heart she was awestruck sometimes at the almost divine patience of Ivory's conduct as a son.

"How is your mother this summer, Ivory?" she asked as they sat down on the meeting house steps waiting for Jed Morrill to open the door.

"There is little change in her from year to year, Waitstill—by the way, why don't we get out of this afternoon sun and sit in the old graveyard under the trees? We are early and the choir won't get here for half an hour. Dr. Perry says that he does not understand mother's case in the least and that no one but some great Boston physician could give a proper opinion on it; of course that is impossible at present."

They sat down on the grass underneath one of the elms, and Waitstill took off her hat and leaned back against the tree trunk.

"Tell me more," she said; "it is so long since we talked together quietly, and we have never really spoken of your mother."

"Of course," Ivory continued, "the people of the village all think and speak of mother's illness as religious insanity, but to me it seems nothing of the sort. I was only a child when father first fell in with Jacob Cochrane, but I was twelve when father went away from home on his 'mission,' and if there was any one suffering from delusions in our family it was he, not mother. She had altogether given up going to the Cochrane meetings, and I well remember the scene when my father told her of the revelation he had received about going through the state and into New Hampshire in order to convert others and extend the movement. She had no sympathy with his self imposed mission, you may be sure, though now she goes back in her memory to the earlier days of her married life, when she tried hard, poor soul, to tread the same path that father was treading, so as to be by his side at every turn of the road."

"I am sure" (here Ivory's tone was somewhat dry and satirical) "that father's road had many turns, Waitstill! He was a schoolmaster in Saco, you know, when I was born, but he soon turned from teaching to preaching, and here my mother followed with entire sympathy, for she was intensely, devoutly religious. I said there was little change in her, but there is one new symptom. She has ceased to refer to her conversion to Cochraneism as a blessed experience. Her memory of those first days seems to have faded. As to her sister's death and all the circumstances of her bringing Rodman home, her mind is a blank. Her expectation of father's return, on the other hand, is much more intense than ever."

"She must have loved your father dearly, Ivory, and to lose him in this terrible way is much worse than death. Uncle Bart says he had a great gift of language!"

stance is so different from one Bart's that one can scarcely find the truth between the two, and father bears no relation to that of any of the others."

"Some of us see facts and others see visions," replied Ivory, "and these differences of opinion crop up in the village every day when anything not worthy is discussed. I came upon quotation in my reading last evening that described it. 'One said it thundered; another that an angel spoke.'"

"Do you feel as if your father was dead, Ivory?"

"I can only hope so. That thought brings sadness with it, as one remembers his disappointment and failure but if he is alive he is a traitor."

There was a long pause, and the could see in the distance Humphre Barker with his clarinet and Plin Waterhouse with his bass viol driving up to the churchyard fence to hitch their horses. The sun was dipping low and red behind the Town House hill on the other side of the river.

"What makes my father dislike that very mention of yours?" asked Waitstill. "I know what they say—that is because the two men had high word once in a Cochrane meeting, when father tried to interfere with some of the exercises and was put out of doors. I doesn't seem as if that grievance, seventeen or eighteen years ago, would influence his opinion of your mother or of you."

"It isn't likely that a man of your father's sort would forget or forgive what he considered an injury, and in refusing to have anything to do with the son of a disgraced man and a deranged woman he is well within his rights."

Ivory's cheeks burned red under the tan, and his hand trembled a little as he plucked bits of clover from the grass and pulled them to pieces absently. "How are you getting on at home these days, Waitstill?" he asked as if to turn his own mind and he from a too painful subject.

"You have troubles enough of your own without hearing mine, Ivory, anyway they are not big affliction heavy sorrows, like those you have to bear. Mine are just petty, nagging sordid, cheap little miseries, like gun bites—so petty and so sordid that I can hardly talk to God about them, much less to a human friend. Patty is my only outlet and I need others, yet find it almost impossible to escape from the narrowness of my life and be of use to any one else." The girl's voice quivered and a single teardrop on her cheek showed that she was speaking from a full heart. "This afternoon talk has determined me on one thing she went on. 'I am going to see you mother now and then. I shall have to do it secretly, for your sake, for he and for my own, but if I am found out then I will go openly. There must be times when one can break the low law and yet keep the higher. Father law in this case is the lower and I propose to break it.'"

"I can't have you getting into trouble, Waitstill," Ivory objected. "You're the only woman I can think of who might help my mother. All the same I would not make your life harder for worlds!"

It was almost impossible for Ivory to hold his peace then, so full of gratitude was his soul and so great his longing to pour out the feeling that flooded it. He pulled himself together and led the way out of the churchyard was "considering several," but his first romance had ended in such complete disaster that he saw in a vision his life blasted—changed in one brief moment from that of a prosperous young painter to that of a blighted and despised bungler, whose week's wages were likely to be expended in molasses to make good the deacon's loss.

"Find those cleaning cloths I left in the back room," ordered Patty, with a flashing eye. "Get some blocks or bits of board or stones for me to walk on so that I can get out of your nasty mess. Fill Bill Morrill's jug, quick, and set it out on the steps for him to pick up. I don't know what you'd do without me to plan for you! Lock the front door and hang father's sign that he's gone to dinner on the doorknob. Scoop up all the molasses you can with one of those new towels on the counter. Scoop and scrape and scoop and scrape; then put a cloth on your oldest broom, pour lots of water on, pull after pull, and scrub. When you've scrubbed till it won't do any more good, then scrub. After that I shouldn't wonder if you had to fan the floor with a newspaper or it'll never get dry before fa-

But Cochrane's last revelations differed from the first and of the earth, earthly. My mother's pure soul must have revolted, but she was not strong enough to drag father from his allegiance. Mother was a better family than father, but they were both well educated and had the best schooling to be had in their day. As far as I can judge, mother always had more 'balance' than father and much better judgment—yet look at her now!"

"Then you think it was your father's appearance that really caused her mind to waver?" asked Waitstill. "I do, indeed. I don't know what happened between them in the way of religious differences nor how much unhappiness these may have caused. I remember she had an illness when we first came here to live and I was a little chap of three or four, but that was caused by the loss of a child, a girl, who lived only a few weeks. She recovered perfectly, and her head was as clear as mine for a year or two after father went away. As his letters grew less frequent, as news of him gradually ceased to come, she became more and more silent and retired more completely into herself. She never went anywhere nor entertained visitors because she did not wish to hear of gossip and speculation that were going on in the village. Some of it was very hard for a wife to bear, and she resented it indignantly, yet never uttered a word from father with which to refute it. At this time, as early as I can judge, she was a close and subject to periods of profound melancholy, but nothing worse. When she took that winter journey to her sister's deathbed, brought home a boy, and, hastened by exposure to chill and grief, I suppose, her mind gave way—that's all." And Ivory gazed drearily as he stretched himself on the greensward and looked off toward the snowclad New Hampshire hills. "I've meant to write the story of the 'Cochrane craze' some time or other part of it as has to do with my family history, and you shall read it if I like."

"Some of us see facts and others see fictions," replied Ivory, "and these differences of opinion crop up in the village every day when anything noteworthy is discussed. I came upon a quotation in my reading last evening that described it. 'One said it thundered; another that an angel spoke.'" "Do you feel as if your father was dead, Ivory?" "I can only hope so. That thought

CHAPTER IX. A June Sunday.

IT was Sunday in June, and almost the whole population of Riverboro and Edgewood was walking or driving in the direction of the meeting house on Tory hill.

Church toilets, you may well believe, were difficult of attainment by Deacon Baxter's daughters, as they had been by his respective helpmates in years gone by. When Waitstill's mother first asked her husband to buy her a new dress, and that was two years after marriage, he simply said "You look well enough. What do you want to waste money on finery for these hard times? If other folks are extravagant that ain't any reason you should be. You ain't obliged to take your neighbors for an example, take 'em for a warnin'!"

"But, Foxwell, my Sunday dress is worn completely to threads," urged the second Mrs. Baxter.

"That's what women always say. They're all alike, no more idea o' savin' anything than a skunk blackbird. I can't spare any money for gewgaws and you might as well understand it first as last. Go up attic and open the hair trunk by the winder, you'll find plenty there to last you for years to come."

The second Mrs. Baxter visited the attic as commanded, and in turning over the clothes in the old trunk knew by instinct that they had belonged to her predecessor in office. Some of the dresses were neat, though terribly worn and faded, but all were fortunately far too short and small for a person of her fine proportions. Besides, her very soul shrank from wearing them, and her spirit revolted both from the insult to herself and to the poor dead woman she had succeeded, so she came downstairs to darn and mend and patch again her shabby wardrobe.

Waitstill had gone through the same experience as her mother before her, but in despair when she was seventeen she began to cut over the old garments for herself and Patty. Mercifully there were very few of them, and they had long since been discarded. At eighteen she had learned to dye yarns with yellow oak or maple bark and to make purples from elder and sumac berries; she could spin and knit as well as any old "aunt" of the village and cut and shape a garment as deftly as the Edgewood tailor, but the task of making bricks without straw was a hard one indeed.

She wore a white cotton frock on this particular Sunday. It was starched and ironed with a beautiful gloss, while a touch of distinction was given to her costume by a little black sleeveless "roundabout" made out of the covering of an old silk umbrella. Her flat hat had a single wreath of coarse daisies around the crown, and her mitts were darned in many places. Nevertheless you could not entirely spoil her; God had used a liberal hand in making her, and her father's parsimony was a sort of boomerang that flew back chiefly upon himself.

As for Patty, her style of beauty, like Cephas Cole's, had to be toned down rather than up to be effective, but circumstances had been cruelly unrelenting in this process of late. Deacon Baxter had given the girls three or four shopworn pieces of faded yellow calico that had been repudiated by the village housewives as not fast enough in color to bear the test of proper washing. This had made frocks, aprons,

"I wonder if he ever puts anything into the plate?" said Mrs. Day. "No one ever saw him that I know of."

"The deacon keeps the Thou Shalt Not commandments pretty well," was Aunt Abby's terse response. "I guess he don't put nothin' into the plate, but I s'pose we'd ought to be thankful he don't take nothin' out. The Baptists are gettin' ahead faster than they'd ought to up to the Mills. Our minister ain't no kind of a proselyter. Seems as if he didn't care how folks got to heaven so long as they got there. As for Patty, her style of beauty, like Cephas Cole's ell, had to be toned down rather than up to be effective, but cir- cumstances had been cruelly unrelent- ing in this process of late. Deacon Baxter had given the girls three or four shopworn pieces of faded yellow calico that had been repudiated by the village housewives as not fast enough in color to bear the test of proper wash- ing. This had made frocks, aprons, petticoats and even underclothes for two full years, and Patty's weekly ob- jurgations when she removed her ever- lasting yellow dress from the nail where it hung were not such as should have fallen from the lips of a dea- con's daughter. Waitstill had taken a piece of the same yellow material, starched and ironed it, cut a curving, circular brim from it, sewed in a plait- ed crown, and, lo, a hat for Patty! What inspired Patty to put on a waist ribbon of deepest wine color, with a little band of the same on the pale yellow hat, no one could say.

"Do you think you shall like that dull red right close to the yellow, Pat- ty?" Waitstill asked anxiously.

"It looks all right on the columbines in the Indian cellar," replied Patty, turning and twisting the hat on her head. "If we can't get a peek at the Boston fashions we must just find our styles where we can."

The various roads to Tory hill were alive with vehicles on this bright Sun- day morning. Uncle Bert and Abel Day, with their respective wives on the back seat of the Cole's double wagon, were passed by Deacon Baxter and his daughters, Waitstill being due at meeting earlier than others by rea- son of her singing in the choir. The deacon's one horse, two wheeled "shay" could hold three persons with comfort on its broad seat, and the twenty-year-old mare, although she was always as hollow as a gourd, could generally do the mile, uphill all the way, in half an hour if urged contin- ually, and the deacon, be it said, if not good at feeding was unsurpassed at urging.

Aunt Abby Cole could get only a passing glimpse of Patty in the depths of the "shay," but a glimpse was always enough for her, as her opinion of the girl's charms was considerably af- fected by the forlorn condition of her son, Cephas, whom she suspected of being hopelessly in love with the young person aforesaid, to whom she commonly alluded as "that red headed baggage."

"Patience Baxter's got the kind of looks that might do well enough at a tavern dance or a husking, but they're entirely unsuited to the Sabbath day or the meetin' house," so Aunt Abby remarked to Mrs. Day in the way of back seat confidence. "It's unfortu- nate that a deacon's daughter should be afflicted with that bold style of beauty. Her hair's all but red. In fact, you might as well call it red when the sun shines on it. But if she'd ever smack it down with bear's grease she might darken it some, or anyhow she'd make it lay slicker. But it's the kind of hair that just matches that kind of a girl—sort of up an' com- in'. Then her skin's so white and her cheeks so pink and her eyes so snappy that she'd attract attention without half tryin', though I guess she ain't above makin' an effort."

"She's innocent as a kitten," ob- served Mrs. Day impartially.

"Oh, yes, she's innocent enough an'

The other one's cut out for the crowd, the more the merrier. She's a kind of mantrap, that girl is! Do urge the horse a little mite, Bartholomew! Modernize your Kitchen

One by one the bugbears of housekeeping are being put to rout through the instrumentality of gas.

The modern kitchen—which means the all-gas kitchen—is now a recognized part of the up-to-date home. The all-gas kitchen lightens labor. It means a clean, wholesome, sanitary kitchen, as there is no coal dust or ashes to be spread around, and it becomes a real pleasure to work in it. Every housewife desires to cook and heat water in the most economical way, in the quickest, most depend- able way, with the least possible work.

The All-Gas way is the solution to the problem.

The hot weather is here now and if you want a cool, comfortable kitchen this summer come and select your Gas Range and Water Heater now. We have ranges at all prices.

YOUR BEST FRIEND

THE POULTRYMAN.

Now that the laying season is over, the hens are commencing to molt and are therefore in an abnormal condition. They need good attention and the best of feed during this period.

Some of the causes of roup are sudden and extreme changes in temperature, damp houses and drafts.

After the fowls begin to molt they should be given ground bone once every day and a meal of meat at least three times a week.

The up to date fancier these days examines his growing flock of chicks very carefully, so that by selection and elimination he may keep that which is best and discard that which is poorest from his flock.

Keep fine charcoal and grit where chicks may have free access to it.

DISINFECTANT FOR POULTRY QUARTERS

(Prepared by dairy division, United States department of agriculture.)

The first consideration in obtaining a disinfectant for poultry quarters should be effectiveness. It isn't good economy to buy a disinfectant for the simple reason that it is cheap. Poultrymen should use their own disinfectants. They can do it more cheaply than buying ready mixed commercial disinfectants, and they are quite as effective. The cresol solution is one of the best of these.

Cresol may be obtained through druggists, and in buying it should be specified as "commercial cresol." This may be placed directly with water and used as a spray, but as it is not very soluble it is better to make use of what is known as a "compound solution of cresol," which in turn is diluted by water. The government's proportions are as follows:

First put four quarts of raw linseed oil in a four or five gallon stone crock; then weigh out in a dish one and two-thirds pounds of commercial caustic

IN THE DAIRY.

During the summer the cows enjoy the cool nights. If a good pasture lot near the barn can be provided for them time will be saved in the morning, and the cows will do better.

Not one cow barn in a hundred has enough windows. Sunshine is amply provided by nature, and it's a shame to shut it out of the stable.

The watering tank should be well covered, except where the stock are allowed to drink. It keeps the water cleaner and cooler.

It's a mistake to try to make a profitable animal out of a runty scrub.

Skim milk is such a valuable feed that the separator is a necessity on every dairy farm.

FARM WORK HORSES.

A Little Care Will Help Greatly In Keeping Them In Condition.

Summer is the hardest season on the farm horse. By July you can see this very plainly if you will observe the horses that are tied at the hitch racks around the public square or along the side streets on a Saturday afternoon, writes a correspondent of the Farm Progress. Their hair looks bad; there are marks on their backs and shoulders, and the hair is gone where the tugs have rubbed during the plowing.

Many of them are thin and bony, and their manes and tails look as though they had never known a comb or a brush. At the same time you notice these evidences of hard work and lack of care you will see other horses that have been worked just as hard that are in good working condition and spirits.

An irritable, nervous, high strung man will worry a team thin in a few weeks. I used to plow across the fence from one of these irascible individuals with a keen, high pitched voice. His squalling and yelling actually worried my own team when we would be working but a few rods apart. You could hear him for a mile squalling and beating them. His mules would be thin and weary looking by the time he got

CREAMERY RECORDS.

These Are the Basis of Creamery Management.

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

The efficiency of a creamery is measured by its financial returns. Maximum returns show that each operation has been conducted carefully and with the application of modern practices; they show that causes of leaks and losses have been discovered and eliminated, and they show that avenues for increased profits have been found and utilized. On the other hand, returns below the maximum show that the creamery operator has failed to take advantage of the factors under his control, with the result that a loss has been sustained; in other words, the operator has failed in the management of the creamery.

The fundamental basis of good creamery management is a simple, practical bookkeeping or accounting system. No creamery operator, regardless of his natural ability, can know the details of his business unless he keeps records of each department. The human mind is incapable of retaining completely a mass of details, and unless a thorough knowledge of each phase of a business is available leaks or losses creep in unnoticed. With the facts and figures before him the creamery manager is constantly in a position to make operation most efficient. Under such conditions most managers are striving at all times to add allied lines that shall be a source of income.

Many creameries must change their methods very radically in order to get on a profitable basis. They must, however, know their true condition before they will be justified in making a radical change, and hence they should in-

ANDREW JACKSON'S FINE

How Judge Hall Came to Punish Doughty General.

When the war of 1812 was over, vague rumors of peace drifted from New Orleans, but still Jackson did feel justified in revoking the martial law, under which he had placed the city. While the city was in this state this peculiar incident started. A man named Louallier was tried as being a spy and was acquitted. This pleased Jackson, and feeling that the martial law he had complete command of the city, he, in opposition to the court, retained Louallier in prison and sent Judge Hall out of the city with orders not to return until it was regularly posted that peace had been declared or that the enemy had reached the coast.

The following day came the over-notice officially explaining that peace had been declared and that the treaty had been ratified. Upon hearing this Jackson revoked the martial law and set all his prisoners free. Then preparing to send home the detached militia from Louisiana, Tennessee and Kentucky amid the greetings and demonstrations of the populace, Judge Hall returned to the city.

In order to uphold the honor, as seems of the civil over the martial government, Judge Hall issued, on May 21, an order summoning Jackson to court for contempt of a habeas corpus writ and also to state his reasons so doing. The next day Jackson appeared in court in person. He held a written protest against the decision which was to be given.

Hall then imposed a fine of $1,000, remarking that "the duty was unpleasant, that he could not forget the important services of the defendant to the country, and that in consideration thereof he would not make imprisonment a part of the punishment."

The fine was promptly paid after cheering of the crowd for the popular hero.—Philadelphia Press.

THEY JUST MADE HIM SING

When Scanlan Wooed Minister Wu and the Chinese Officials.

When W. J. Scanlan was in the sh business he invaded Washington on one occasion with a brand new comedy opera. In order to give the piece a sendoff he formulated the plan of selling free tickets for boxes to the president, the cabinet members and other men high in social life.

"That won't do," one of his newspaper friends told him. "Too common. Do something picturesque. Why don't you go after Mr. Wu, the Chinese minister? If you get him he will bring down a lot of other diplomatic people."

Scanlan fell for the proposition and called at the Chinese legation.

"What sort of show is this?" asked Mr. Wu.

"It's a comic opera," replied Scanlan. "Any good jokes in it?"

Scanlan said it was full of good jokes.

"Tell me some of them," commanded Mr. Wu.

Scanlan did so, and Wu got such a series of laughs out of them that sent for his whole establishment, numbering thirty-two people, and made embarrassed Scanlan tell them all over again.

"Now," continued Wu, "are there any good songs in this show?"

One may be obtained through drug-gists, and in buying it should be specified as "commercial cresol." This may be placed directly with water and used as a spray, but as it is not very soluble it is better to make use of what is known as "compound solution of cresol," which in turn is diluted by water. The government's proportions are as follows:

First put four quarts of raw linseed oil in a four or five gallon stone crock; then weigh out in a dish one and two-thirds pounds of commercial caustic potash, which may be obtained from any druggist at 10 or 15 cents a pound. Dissolve this potash in a pint of water, and add the cold potash solution very slowly to the linseed oil, stirring con-

Too little care is given fowls in the matter of providing pure, clean drinking water. It should be remembered that the principal part of the egg as well as of the fowl itself is water. Pure fresh water, then, is of vital importance. The illustration shows a homemade water fountain that answers every demand. It is made of a cheese box, with the bottom removed and slats arranged as shown in the illustration. The arrangement is then set over a gallon crock sunk in the earth.

stantly. Not less than five minutes should be taken to the adding of this solution of potash to the oil.

For five hours after mixing the cold potash solution should be stirred thoroughly every hour, and then it should be left standing ten or twelve hours. By the expiration of that time saponification should be complete. This soap should then be stirred, and five and one-fourth quarts of commercial cresol should be added. The soap will slowly dissolve in this cresol. It may take two days for a complete solution to be effected. When the soap is all dissolved the solution is ready for use. This cresol will mix in any proportion of water and will make a clear solution.

The quantities given in the foregoing directions may be increased or lessened in accordance with your requirements, but one should be careful to maintain the proportions given. To disinfect the interior of poultry houses, incubators, brooders, etc., a 2 per cent solution of this cresol mixture will be found very satisfactory both for general disinfecting and for cleaning out vermin. This would mean one gallon of cresol solution to fifty gallons of water, or three or four teaspoonfuls of cresol solution to a gallon of water would be about right.

Keep Chickens Growing.

As your chickens grow old remember that they need more feed. The amount required to produce a pound of gain increases as the birds grow older. Increase the amount of feed each week so that they will have enough. If you go around the last thing before dark with a pail of feed throw a little in each coop, and you will soon know whether or not they have had enough.

I believe that the general purpose horse is the most satisfactory grade of horse for general use on the farm. For this reason I raise Percherons and have found them a very good all around horse, writes an Iowa farmer. I begin to break my colts when they are three years old or a little more, always putting them alongside of a steady horse. I give my work horses hay and oats with a little corn and let brood mares and colts run outside all day even during the coldest weather in winter. When the colts are six months old I wean them, giving them a ration of hay and oats. In raising horses I have found that the most profitable returns are received from only the best grades of colts and aim to raise nothing but good horses. The horse pictured is a Percheron grade.

his crop in, and a mule cares about as little for that sort of a thing as any animal you could name.

Jerking the line, pulling the animals back suddenly upon their haunches, swinging them sharply around at the end of the row and slapping them constantly with the heavy lines will irritate and worry a team far more than an occasional tap with a whiplash.

Hammering their legs with the back of a currycomb and brush while grooming them, beating them around in the stalls to make them "stand over" and shoving them over in the stall by "hunching" them with the knee will worry them down. Slamming the harness on as roughly as though you were throwing it on a wooden horse is another trick that will not make a horse comfortable.

Sheep Management.

If the flockowner does not dip his flock to free them from ticks or lice he is wasting time and feed without getting profit. When he does not try to avoid parasites in the flock, does not change them to new pasture occasionally and allows them to drink from old stagnant water pools, he will be forced to learn through loss that he is not doing the right thing. In many cases such loss is attributed to "bad luck," when in reality it is nothing but mismanagement. The proper management of sheep needs to be learned like any other business.

DON'TS FOR THIN WOMEN.

Don't walk too much. A moderate amount of exercise will be beneficial, but very long walks are reducing and apt to prove exhausting.

Don't wear black. It has a tendency to make every one look slender. Wear light clothes if they suit you at all.

Don't stay up late at night. Get at least nine hours' sleep, as this will help to fatten you.

Don't forget that a rounded figure, even though slender, is considered a beauty and takes from the age of its possessor.

Don't worry, as nothing so quickly wastes tissues and muscles and reduces one to skeleton-like proportions and a haggard countenance.

Don't depend upon quack remedies. Rely upon rest, suitable food of a starchy nature, massage and plenty of sleep to make you plump.

completely a mass of acorns, and unless a thorough knowledge of each phase of a business is available leaks or losses creep in unnoticed. With the facts and figures before him the creamery manager is constantly in a position to make operation most efficient. Under such conditions most managers are striving at all times to add allied lines that shall be a source of income. Many creameries must change their methods very radically in order to get on a profitable basis. They must, however, know their true condition before they will be justified in making a radical change, and hence they should install a good system of keeping records, as it is in this way only that true conditions can be learned. "Lack of time and help" is no excuse for failure to keep a good set of books so long as the success of the creamery depends so largely on the proper handling of the finances. When the creamery has discovered where losses are its methods may be changed to advantage.

For Tightening Fences.

In spite of the best care wire fences will become more or less slack after being up some time. The device shown herewith will take up this slack in a few minutes. It consists of two stout pieces of wood, to which the wires are firmly fastened, and two long bolts with long threads. The bolts pass through the wood and are tightened as occasion may require. Several of these tighteners may be placed in long lines of fence wherever it is convenient to put them.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Don't permit any fruit to ripen on berry plants set this season, except on fall bearing strawberries.

Experienced growers do not pick berries for market when the fruit is wet, and they keep the crates in a cool place, out of the sun.

Three years of spraying, pruning and cultivation will bring an orchard that you are ashamed of into a condition that you will be proud of.

Surplus suckers in blackberry or red raspberry patches should be treated just like weeds, leaving only enough shoots for next year's fruiting.

The benefits of spraying are no longer questioned by progressive fruit growers. There may be seasons when it is not absolutely necessary, but no one can tell when the pleasures of that season will be experienced. As a safeguard for the quantity and quality of the fruit spraying is certainly indispensable.

Save the Good Heifers.

One of the greatest mistakes we have made in the past years is not raising our good trade heifer calves. Now the demand for good cows is greater than the supply. When well bred grade two-year-old heifers sell for $75 to $100 it would seem we could market some of our surplus, feed to good advantage through this channel, instead of sending so many thousand dollars to other states each year and buying something they want to get rid of.—J. E. Manson, Illinois.

Mr. Wu.

"It's a comic opera," replied Scanlan. "Any good jokes in it?"

Scanlan said it was full of jokes.

"Tell me some of them," commended Mr. Wu.

Scanlan did so, and Wu got a series of laughs out of them; then sent for his whole establishment, being thirty-two people, and made embarrassed Scanlan tell them all again.

"Now," continued Wu, "are any good songs in this show?"

"The show had so many good songs," declared Scanlan, "that we have thrown some of them away."

"All right," said Wu. "Sing me of the best."

"I sang them," said Scanlan, to the story afterward. "But that was so remarkable. I had to sing. There were thirty-two Chinamen make me sing 'em. The amazing of the thing was that all thirty-two of them came to see the show that night."—Popular Magazine.

Why the Boiler Rumbles.

That noisy rumbling and clattering in the kitchen boiler after the gas heater has been lighted for some time has scared many a woman. The editor of the Monthly Gas Chat it need alarm no one, as it is caused by the expansion of the water as heated from the top of the boiler. Colder water below, rushing up to place the expanded water above often cause a concussion.

ANDREW JACKSON'S FINE.

New Judge Hall Came to Punish the Doughty General.

When the war of 1812 was over, vague rumors of peace drifted into New Orleans, but still Jackson did not feel justified in revoking the martial law, under which he had placed the city. While the city was in this state this peculiar incident started. A man named Louaillier was tried as being a spy and was acquitted. This displeased Jackson, and feeling that in the martial law he had complete command of the city, he, in opposition to the court, retained Louaillier in prison and sent Judge Hall out of the city with orders not to return until it was regularly posted that peace had been declared or that the enemy had left the coast.

The following day came the overdue notice officially explaining that peace had been declared and that the treaty had been ratified. Upon hearing this Jackson revoked the martial law and set all his prisoners free. Then preparing to send home the detached militia from Louisiana, Tennessee and Kentucky amid the greetings and demonstrations of the populace, Judge Hall returned to the city.

In order to uphold the honor, as it seems of the civil over the martial government, Judge Hall issued, on March 21, an order summoning Jackson to court for contempt of a habeas corpus writ and also to state his reason for so doing. The next day Jackson appeared in court in person. He held a written protest against the decision which was to be given.

Hall then imposed a fine of $1,000, remarking that "the duty was unpleasant, that he could not forget the important services of the defendant to the country, and that in consideration hereof he would not make imprisonment a part of the punishment."

The fine was promptly paid amid cheering of the crowd for the popular hero.—Philadelphia Press.

THEY JUST MADE HIM SING.

When Scanlan Wooed Minister Wu and the Chinese Officials.

When W. J. Scanlan was in the show business he invaded Washington on one occasion with a brand new comic opera. In order to give the piece a fine sendoff he formulated the plan of sending free tickets for boxes to the president, the cabinet members and other men high in social life.

"That won't do," one of his newspaper friends told him. "Too common. Do something picturesque. Why don't you go after Mr. Wu, the Chinese minister? If you get him he will bring down a lot of other diplomatic people."

Scanlan fell for the proposition and called at the Chinese legation.

"What sort of show is this?" asked Mr. Wu.

"It's a comic opera," replied Scanlan. "Any good jokes in it?"

Scanlan said it was full of good jokes.

"Tell me some of them," commanded Mr. Wu.

Scanlan did so, and Wu got such a series of laughs out of them that he sent for his whole establishment, numbering thirty-two people, and made the embarrassed Scanlan tell them all over again.

"Now," continued Wu, "are there any good songs in this show?"

THE COLLEGE GIRL

Gifts That Make Her Keep Absent Friends In Mind.

JOLLY FAREWELL SHOWERS.

At These Her Chums May Say Adieu and Present Her With the Parting Token That is to Insure Remembrance During Absence.

When Polly or Betty announces that she is to go to college or boarding school when the term opens fond friends and relatives are on the alert. For Polly or Betty cannot be permitted to depart to academic halls without some token to keep the absent in mind. And so there is a patient searching of the shops, a relentless fine combing of memories, to settle the question as to what the Polly or Betty would best like. The majority of conclusions is in favor of something pretty. A gift that is both useful and attractive is, however, more likely to go with her to college halls than the simply pretty, for the number of trinkets that can be taken along is necessarily limited.

A farewell shower for the college girl is a jolly idea. It enables friends to say farewell to her under the most delightful circumstances. There should be a little spread at which the decorations are in the future alma mater's colors. Each guest may bring a gift tied with the colors and containing an appropriate sentiment, or all may unite in buying some one useful souvenir.

A reading lamp like the one illustrated is a useful and attractive gift. The modern school is equipped with electricity, and an electric lamp, chafing dish or iron is among the gifts in this line which will be appreciated. With the iron, wrinkled garments may be pressed out in an emergency.

Boxes of all kinds are useful. The little enameled affair shown is nice as a bonbon, jewel or powder box. It

PLANNING FOR SCHOOL.

Dresses That School Misses Will Need For Classroom Wear in the Fall.

For the girl who is making her first appearance at college or for the boarding school miss a modish but simple tailored suit is an important item of the wardrobe. She is not likely to be prominent in the social activities of the college or school set until she has an established circle of acquaintances, and her everyday dresses and the best suit will have much to do in placing her in the estimation of her associates. With these first opinions are likely to be based very much on appearances.

Serge is always a safe choice for the tailored suit. The quality should be as fine as circumstances will permit, but the garment should be up to date in every line, for no one is more critical than the girl of this age. Blue is a safe color to choose. Anything freakish in cut or line should be avoided.

The gown pictured here is of blue serge, with short coat finished below with wide belt with a plaited peplum effect. The skirt has a short double tunic and a loose box plait on the front. The gown is short enough to show neat buttoned boots. The little fabric hat is shaped to shade the face.

"Fruit-a-lives" Keeps Young And Old In Splendid Health

J. W. HAMMOND Esq.

SCOTLAND, ONT., Aug. 25th. 1913 "Fruit-a-lives" are the only pill manufactured, to my way of thinking. They work completely, no gripping whatever, and one is plenty for any ordinary person at a dose. My wife was a martyr to Constipation. We tried everything on the calendar without satisfaction, and spent large sums of money until we happened on "Fruit-a-lives". I cannot say too much in their favor.

We have used them in the family for about two years and we would not use anything else as long as we can get "Fruit-a-lives".

Their action is mild, and no distress at all. I have recommended them to many other people, and our whole family uses them".

Those who have been cured by "Fruit-a-lives" are proud and happy to tell a sick or ailing friend about these wonderful tablets made from fruit juices.

HE ENFORCED THE RULE.

But In Doing It Grant Proved His Good Hearted Nature.

General Grant was a kind and warm-hearted man in spite of a certain brusqueness of manner. A story that General Logan used often to tell is to the point.

At the time General Logan was with General Grant at Holly Springs, Miss., General Forrest, the Confederate cavalry leader, had just captured a train of supplies, and General Grant had issued an order to his men to scour the country for twenty miles round in order to get food for his troops. The country had already been swept pretty clean, and the new demands brought a good deal of hardship on the people of the neighborhood. At many of the homes there were only women, old men, children and faithful colored servants. These people, hungry and without money to buy provisions, were often forced to apply to the northern army in their distress. Food was always given them if they would take the oath of allegiance to the United States.

One day a rickety carriage drew up before General Grant's headquarters, and from it alighted an elderly woman

COMPROMISE STYLE.

This Combines the Best Features of the Various Methods of Serving.

In the compromise table service some things are served in the English way, while others are passed as in the Rus- sian. As an example, soup may be served from the pantry in bowls or plates to each guest; the host may carve the roast; the vegetable platters and the salad course, with its dressing, wafers, etc., may be passed by the waitress and the desserts served by the hostess.

This is a favored style with those who cannot command trained service or as many as might be required to serve a large dinner.

The soup plates are removed, then the large meat platter placed before the host, who proceeds to carve, while the various vegetables are being dish- ed in the kitchen. These are then handed to each guest in turn, always from the left hand, by the waitress. She removes everything to serve the salad and can then be preparing the coffee, etc., for the last course while guests are partaking of the dessert served by the hostess.

An Emergency Scheme.

Often it is inconvenient to get a yeast cake at a moment's notice, so one kept on hand would prove con- venient. This is the way to keep one, in whole or in part—simply immerse it in flour or salt until needed.

FOR OUTDOOR TEAS.

For tea on the veranda you can find nothing more fitting than the tea table on wheels.

It has a handle, too, so you can just pull it around wherever you want it. The top is of glass, disclosing beneath a place for sandwiches and whatever else accompanies the tea.

The wheels are small and dainty and arranged ricksha fashion, one on each side. The legs, too, are gracefully shaped and support a shelf parallel to the top. It is really one of the most fascinating pieces to be seen.

Spiteful.

Ragged Rogers—De lady in de next house give me a piece of lemon- ade cake. Won't you give me some- thin', too?

Mrs. Spiteful—Certainly, I'll give you a peepsin tablet.

An Economical System.

"Aunt," said a pensive urchin, "what comes o' a' the auld moons?" "Deed, laddie, I'm no very sure." Was the taddy reply. "They'll maybe clip them doon an' mak' stars o' them."

The gown pictured here is of blue serge, with short coat finished below with wide belt with a plaited peplum effect. The skirt has a short double tunic and a loose box plait on the front. The gown is short enough to show neat buttoned boots. The little fabric hat is shaped to shade the face.

WEDGWOOD WARE.

Queen Mary of England's Partiality to It Makes It Again Fashionable.

The English queen is an admirer and collector of old Wedgwood pottery, and at Windsor castle there is a room en- tirely devoted to this famous ware, some of the finest and rarest examples being displayed.

Wedgwood pottery, the older exam- ples of which are so much sought after, is named after the most famous potter England has ever produced—Josiah Wedgwood, who died in 1795. He produced from designs by Flaxman, the sculptor, white cameo reliefs on a delicate blue ground known and envied by collectors all over the world as Wedgwood ware.

This ware is now very costly and practically beyond the means of the ordinary collector.

NEAT TEA COZY.

The Chinese Basket Which Is Con- veniently Fitted and Wadded.

The most practical of all tea cozies is the Chinese tea basket, which comes fitted with teapot and two Chinese serving cups. This basket is wadded and lined in characteristic Chinese style and has a strong hasp and metal handle on the cover. It will keep the tea hot for an hour. These baskets come in three sizes of from two to five cups capacity. They are ideal for out of door teas and the automobile. Most attractive are the embroidered linen and the silk cozies which slip over the pot.

PANTRY POINTERS.

If milk is heated until lukewarm, then chilled suddenly, there will be much more cream.

Scale fish with a nice, clean curry- comb that has never been used for anything else.

Microbes are apt to lurk about the mouth of the milk bottle. It should be carefully wiped off before the milk is poured out.

Toughness of angel cake is often due to the fact that the eggs are not beaten properly. They should be beaten so stiff that they will stand alone.

Cut off the rinds and soak rashers of bacon in cold milk for an hour. Take them out, dredge well with flour and fry in fat. This is an improvement on the ordinary method of frying bacon.

a good deal of hardship on the people of the neighborhood. At many of the homes there were only women, old men, children and faithful colored serv- ants. These people, hungry and with- out money to buy provisions, were often forced to apply to the northern army in their distress. Food was al- ways given them if they would take the oath of allegiance to the United States.

One day a rickety carriage drew up before General Grant's headquarters, and from it alighted an elderly woman and her colored driver. The woman was admitted to the tent, and the serv- ant stood just inside the tent flap. Only a few words were necessary to explain matters. The woman's home had been ravaged by troops, both blue and gray, and she and her servants needed food. The soft voiced woman spoke of her humiliation at having to beg for food, and added that she made the request more for her servants than for herself. "I am willing to suffer everything for the south," she said, "but I can't see our people starve."

An officer who had charge of such cases told the woman that she should have food if she would sign the oath of allegiance. "I cannot do that," she said. "My husband and three sons are fighting under the Confederate flag. I thank you, sir, for listening to me."

The woman turned to leave. General Grant, who had been writing at a table in one corner of the tent, glanced up from his papers. He called to the negro:

"Sam, did you ever hear of Abraham Lincoln?"

"Yassuh, gen'ral."

"Do you know that he is trying to free you colored people?"

"Yassuh, Ah knows it."

"Are you willing to take sides with Abraham Lincoln—to take the oath of allegiance to the United States?"

"Yassuh, gen'ral, Ah's willin' ter do dat."

General Grant turned to the officer who had talked with the woman. "Ad- minister the oath to Sam," he said, "and give him the provisions. See that he gets plenty."

The rickety old carriage with its es- cort of soldiers passed through the Union lines a short time afterward, laden to the seats with provisions, and Sam, probably thinking less of his oath than of the supper to come, grinned from ear to ear as he urged the two mules to a faster gait.

The Professor's Prophecy Failed.

While a student at Harvard univer- sity Phillips Brooks was walking in the yard one day with a professor, who asked him what he intended mak- ing of himself.

"I am thinking of the ministry," an- swered the youth.

"Then banish such thoughts," said the professor earnestly. "Your man- ner of speech would forever bar you from being successful in that calling."

Many years later, when Phillips Brooks was one of the world's great pulpit orators, the most expert stenog- rapher in England took down one of his sermons and said:

"Any stenographer who thinks he has conquered fast talkers should try Phillips Brooks."

Rally Day.

The annual Rally Day was held by Grace Methodist Sunday School last Sunday. The previous rallies held by this school was always successful but the one for 1914 surpassed them all. The motto for the last few weeks has been 400 present on Rally Day, but it was hardly expected that this would be attained, but after the roll was called it was found that there were 410 members of the school present. The programme as prepared by the general secretary of the Sunday Schools consisted of choruses and recitations, was carried out by members of the school. The theme of the programme was seed time and harvest. The church was very tastefully decorated, the idea of the decorations being harvest blended with patriotism. The decorations were in charge of the C.I.C. class of the Sunday School and were ably assisted by Mr. Roy Root. In the evening the Rev. Mr. Cragg preached a very eloquent sermon to young men, a very large congregation being in attendance. The male choir of thirty-four voices, under the leadership of A. E. Paul, furnished the singing. Solos were rendered by Mr. Clayton Stevens and Master "Jack" Judson. The male quartette comprised of Messrs. Black, Wiseman, Harburn and Paul, sang a well-rendered selection. Rally Day for 1914 will be long remembered as one of the most successful days in the history of this Church.

Farewell to Miss Hunter.

The members of the Tamworth Methodist choir, and the teachers and officers of the Sunday school met in Coxall's hall on Monday evening to bid farewell to Miss Blanche Hunter, who was leaving on Tuesday for Toronto. About fifty persons were present and spent a very pleasant evening in games and social intercourse. Refreshments were served by Mr. T. J. Watters, who had been engaged as caterer for the evening and all the guests expressed themselves as more than pleased with the menu and service. After supper, Mr. R. C. Moss made an address in which he expressed the feeling of great loss sustained by the Methodist people and the community in general, by the removal of Miss Hunter, who had meant so much to Tamworth as choir leader, Sunday school teacher, organist, music teacher, etc. Miss Hunter spoke her thanks in a few well chosen sentences and the assembly joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne." Speeches followed by Messrs. L. P. Wells, J. R. Pickering, H. E. Thornton, A. B. Carscallen and J. E. Huffman, and Miss E. V. Eastcott after which all stood and sang the National Anthem. Miss Hunter left the following day for Toronto, followed by the good wishes of the whole community.

MAN AND WIFE BURNED TO DEATH IN HOUSE

TRAGIC HAPPENING ON THE MO-HAWK RESERVE AT DESERONTO.

A heavy gloom was cast over the Mohawk Reserve and surrounding vicinity on Sunday, when it was learned that Walter Brant and his wife had been burned to death at their home on the Marysville road. The origin of the fire is and always will be a mystery, as the occupants of the house were undoubtedly burned in their beds. The fire was discovered by Francis John shortly after 12 o'clock Sunday morning, as he was going home from Deseronto. At that time the kitchen and bedroom over it which was occupied by Mr. and Mrs.
Brant, was a mass of flames, and although help was soon summoned, nothing could be done to save the inmates or the property.

On Sunday morning the charred bodies were found lying about eight feet apart amongst the ashes.

Brant, who was a Councillor, was one of the best known members of the band, and owned a good property of about one hundred and fifty acres and a substantial frame house.

The new factory will run all the year

The increase in exemption on inconsiderable decrease in the taxes to be derived from this class of assessment, compared with 1913. The loss of the opera house, also reduced the assessment. Notwithstanding these reductions, Mr. Cliff shows a gain in assessment over 1913. To all appearance the assessment is very satisfactory and Mr. Cliff is to be congratulated on the fairness of his work.
